Jewett Reunion 2000

Letter from the President

Greetings!

Ted Loranz, Russell Jewett and I had a meeting with the Rowley Historical Society a few weeks ago. They are renting a tent for 600 people on the 18th and 19th of August, 2000; so the JFA is going to hold its National Reunion at that time. (The other advantage of this new date is that the area will be infested with greenheads on the first weekend in August when we had originally planned to hold the Reunion.)

We will have a dinner on Friday evening and a surprise party/speaker Saturday afternoon. At least these are our tentative plans. There will be other activities in Rowley at the same time, and we will get into that more as time goes by. The actual dates for the JFA will be the 17th through the 19th of August, 2000. So we are certainly hoping you can make it to Rowley to celebrate with us. You need to make your lodging reservations now. There is a Garden Motel in Rowley, a Bed & Breakfast in Ipswich and many more in Newburyport, along with motels. There are also campgrounds in the area.

With so many events planned for the year 2000, you need to make your plans as soon as possible. If you are interested and need more information, let me know and I will get it for you. We will publish additional information in the next Quarterly following the JFA Board meeting in September.

There will be many gift ideas for you and other Jewett items that may strike your fancy. The Jewett Coat of Arms cross-stitch will be raffled off at the Reunion, and I hope to have a picture in the fall Quarterly for you to see it completed and framed. It will be quite lovely!

We are in the preliminary planning stages right now. If you have suggestions for Reunion activities, please let us know; so we can bring them up at the Board meeting in September. We will work hard; so you can have a good time and enjoy yourselves. There is a lot to see and do in Rowley and in all the surrounding towns. Plan to come along and join the fun!

Toujours le même,
Dorothy Jewett Brigham, President

Pennsylvania Jewett Reunion

(received 6 May 1999)

The 75th Jewett Family Reunion was held 2 Aug 1998 at Knoebel's Amusement Park, Elysburg PA. There were 58 members and guests in attendance on a glorious summer day. A buffet lunch was served at 1 PM.

The business meeting followed lunch and was called to order by our president, Karen Harvey. A moment of silence was observed for departed family members. The secretary's minutes were read and approved as read with the additions of the names of Barbara Dunham and Viola Watkins which had been omitted. The numbers of births were also corrected. The treasurer's report was also read. We have not had a treasurer's report in several years because of the non-attendance of the preceding treasurer and the election of a new one. There was a balance of $264.36 at the start of the meeting with expenses being paid of $134.67.

Marie Oakley and Josephine Dillon were the only members present who were present at the first (Pennsylvania) Jewett reunion. Grant Jewett was the only person present with the last name of Jewett.

Thanks were extended to Jeremy and Jennifer Purdy for the work they did on organizing the sale of t-shirts, sweatshirts and hats with the Jewett family coat of arms. The items which were ordered were on hand to be distributed at the reunion.

Births:

Janelle Helen Oakley was born 24 Apr 1998 to Kevin Rodney Oakley (25135) and Kimberly Jarnagin Oakley in Johnson City, Broome County, NY.

Emily Brynne Purdy was born 11 May 1998 to Gregory Brian Purdy and Bethany Ann Kashuba Purdy in Scranton, Lackawanna County, PA. Gregory is the son of Patricia Lynne Oakley Purdy (25117) and Victor Byron Purdy, Jr.

Marriage:

Michael David Norton was married to Diane Smith 16 May 1998 in Middletown, New Castle County, DE. Michael is the son of Kathleen Marlyn Oakley Norton (25116) and David Larry Norton.

By a show of hands it was decided to return to Knoebel's next year. We would like more space in the pavilion if possible. The Purdy family said it would take care of making the reservations.

All officers were re-elected for another year after which the meeting adjourned.

When visiting the reconstructed village at Spring Mill State Park near Mitchell, Indiana, we had the good fortune to hear a historian tell about the blacksmith shop there. I wish I could give his name, but that has escaped my memory. During the explanation of the uses for the tools displayed in the shop, he took a moment to discuss the type of man who would become a blacksmith. He said that blacksmiths were the early engineers.They not only made iron products for home and farm, but they designed and developed ways for improving the metal and its use. The really skilled blacksmith would custom design carts and buggies. They included an artistic bent to household items.

We were particularly interested in this discussion because of my own Jewett lineage. My great grandfather, Josiah Jewett III, became a blacksmith at an early age and set up shop on the Michigan Road that ran from the Ohio River to Lake Michigan. When Josiah III was a child, his father had died in Clinton Co., Indiana, where he had established a mill in what is now the Caesar's Creek area. Josiah II (3033) had been born in New Hampshire, and he migrated into Ohio in the early 1820's. One of Josiah II's younger brother, Parker Jewett (3039), also migrated out of New Hampshire, and the biography of his son recounts that Parker "learned the blacksmith trade in his native State and later followed that occupation in New York City and also in Cincinnati." Parker settled in Wayne County, Indiana, and two of his sons followed the trade of blacksmithing.

Because Josiah III was so young when his father died (Josiah II died in 1827, Josiah III was born in 1821), we believe he learned the blacksmith trade from his uncle, Parker Jewett, and in fact he named his first son Parker.

The Spring Hill Park historian also told us that blacksmithing was a trade that passed down through the family, each generation training the next. We traveled back in the family tree to Nehemiah Jewett (18), son of the earliest Joseph Jewett (4). When he was 9 years old, Nehemiah's mother died and he was sent to live with his aunt and uncle, Mary and Oliver Purchase. Mr. Purchase owned the Ironworks in Lynn, Massachusetts; so one could guess that the blacksmithing began with Nehemiah. My own lineage follows from Nehemiah's son, Joseph (95) born 1685. Although we have no blacksmiths among our children, we recognize a strong inclination toward engineering; three sons are engineers.

One of our sons is fascinated with antique tools and has entered into the world of antique tool collecting. He alerted us to a web page maintained by Patrick Leach who has a business called The Superior Works which sells antiques on the internet. One of his articles concerns a tool chest containing the name C.A. Jewett which he discovered at a garage sale Mr. Leach believes that Jewett worked at Simonds, a large saw and file manufacturer in Fitchburg, Massachusetts, and at Heywood-Wakefield, a large furniture maker in Gardner, Massachusetts. The web page can be accessed at:

In my genealogical studies, I found a knot of ancestral lines converging with Nehemiah Jewett. According to F.C. Jewett's History and Genealogy of the Jewetts of America, Nehemiah was born in Rowley, but married in Lynn and also lived in Ipswich. He was an elder in the church and was appointed to serve on a church council that dealt with preachers involved in the Salem witch trials. Two web pages deal with this period of religious fervor: The Massachusetts Historical Society's "Groton in the Witchcraft Times" by Samuel A. Green for the Hanover Historical Texts Project at:

www.history.hanover.edu/texts/groton/grointro.html

and Sam Behling's:

The latter web page deals with Elizabeth Knapp, daughter of James and Elizabeth (Warren) Knapp. Elizabeth accused several people of witchcraft, one of whom was Sarah Warren Prince Osborn. Sarah Warren had first married Robert Prince from whom my Prince/Redington ancestry derives. After the furor of the witch trials subsided, Elizabeth Knapp drew back into obscurity, marrying Samuel Scripture from whom my Jewett/Scripture ancestry derives. That is to say, in 1845 Isabelle Scripture married Josiah Jewett III. Josiah's parents were Josiah II and Sarah Redington, daughter of Anne Prince Redington whose grandmother was Sarah Warren Prince Osborn.

This period of religious persecution is also recounted in Richard B. Trask's The Devil Hath Been Raised...

The families of Jewett, Redington, Scripture all began in early Massachusetts and were to be found among the patriots who are described in Louis Birnbaum's Red Dawn at Lexington. Even the hero, Joseph Warren, may be a part of that early ancestry. My ancestor, Joseph Jewett (726), born 1743 in Groton, Massachusetts, moved into New Hampshire and was an early settler in Amherst from where he served in the Revolution. His brother, John (728), remained in Massachusetts from where he served in the Revolution. Daniel Redington IV enlisted in Massachusetts at the age of 15, but years later moved to New Hampshire where he married Ann Prince. John Scripture's father had moved from Massachusetts into Connecticut, but he joined his neighbors in responding to the alarm at Lexington. Along with Birnbaum's Red Dawn..., the 1889 Adjutant's report from Hartford, Connecticut, on The Record of Service of Connecticut Men... tells a story of the grand mixture of town and families reacting to the British incursions.

I find that researching family lineage in relation to historical events is very fulfilling. One connects with history in a way that is both entertaining and educational. It compares to reassenbling a colorful jigsaw puzzle, too.

Following is information collected from various sources by Barbara Broman:

MEMOIRS OF WAYNE COUNTY...INDIANA...

by Henry Clay Fox, pub. 1912, Biographical chapter, p. 673-675

Benjamin F. Jewett. - A home of prayer, where by precept and example every influence was brought to bear which would aid in rearing to manhood and womanhood children of integrity and honor, of usefulness and industry--such was the home of Parker and Mary Ann (Shear) Jewett, whose son, Benjamin F. Jewett, was born in Huntsville, Randolph County, Indiana, July 13, 1841. His father was a native of New Hampshire, born in 1809, and his mother was born in Ohio some years later. The father learned the blacksmith trade in his native State and later followed that occupation in New York City and also in Cincinnati. He entered 240 acres of land near Huntsville, in Randolph County, Indiana, but some years later came to Hagerstown, where he purchased property and followed his trade until his death, in 1870, the mother of Benjamin F. having died in 1855. This worthy couple became the parents of seven children: George Washington is living retired in Huntington; Benjamin F. is the second in order of birth; John J. is deceased, Rachel became the wife of James Personet, of Richmond, and is deceased; Isabel A. is the widow of Fred Weldon and resides in Michigan; Mary Frances became the wife of Riley Saulsbury, of near Economy, and is deceased; and Laura J. is the wife of John Doland, of New Paris, Ohio. After the death of the mother the father married Jane Bowen, of Wayne County, formerly of Pennsylvania, and of this union were born three children: Edward Parker is the minister of the Methodist Episcopal church and resides near Indianapolis; Alice is the wife of Lorenzo Farlow, of Franklin; and William died in infancy. Benjamin F. Jewett resided with his parents and received the benefit of their careful and conscientious training until eighteen years of age. He received his educational training in the schools of Hagerstown, but a few days after reaching the age of twenty years enlisted in Company B of the Nineteenth Indiana infantry for service in the Civil war. This regiment was organized and mustered in at Indianapolis, July 29, 1861. On Aug. 9 it joined the Army of the Potomac at Washington. Its first engagement was Lewisville, Va., Sept. 11. It next fought at Falls Church, after which it went into quarters at Fort Craig, near Washington. On March 10, 1862, it was attached to McDowell's First Corps, with which it moved toward Fredericksburg and then toward the Shenandoah Valley. It remained at Warrenton until Aug. 5, when it made a reconnoissance [sic] toward Spottsylvania Court House. It then joined General Pope's army and fought at Cedar Mountain and Gainesville. At the last named engagement but nineteen of Company B came out of the battle alive and Mr. Jewett was seriously injured by a gunshot wound, which necessitated his discharge from the service. He then came home and attended school about three months, after which he engaged in blacksmithing, having previously learned the trade of his father. He continued in this business until 1894, when he disposed of his tools and has since officiated as the manager of the gas plant in Hagerstown. On Sept. 28, 1865, was solemnized his marriage to Miss Nancy J. Williams, born in Montgomery County, Ohio, Jan. 27, 1844. She is a daughter of George and Margaret (Farris) Williams, natives of Montgomery County, Ohio. George Williams was born about 1814, of Irish descent, and spent his entire life as a farmer in his native county. He is deceased, but his widow, born in 1816, survives and is a resident of Dayton, Ohio. They became the parents of seven children: Wesley served as a soldier in the Civil war, contracting an illness from which he died soon after returning home; Mrs. Jewett is the second in order of birth; Mary is the widow of William Pyles and resides at Louisburg; George is a resident of Dayton, Ohio; Sarah is the widow of William Johnson and resides at Pyrmont, Ohio; and James Greeley and Doctor Franklin were twins, the former of whom is deceased and the latter resides near Logansport, Ind. Aside from his connection with the gas company Mr. Jewett is living practically retired in Hagerstown, where he expects to spend the remainder of his life in quietude. Two children blessed the union of Mr. and Mrs. Jewett: May Etta, born Aug. 1, 1866, is the wife of Harvey Ulrich, a blacksmith of Hagerstown, and they have two children--Ruth, born Aug. 6, 1891, wife of Perry L. Haladay, a tinner at Hagerstown; and Robert J., born Jan. 6, 1895. Margaret, born Feb. 15, 1869, is a stenographer at Muncie, Ind. Mr. Jewett's fraternal relations are with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Grand Army of the Republic, though he prefers the quiet enjoyment of his evenings at home with his family. In politics he is a Republican and casts his ballot for the candidate representing the principles and measures which, in his opinion, are best calculated to conserve the interests of the whole people.

(Note by B. Broman: The 1870 census of Hagerstown, Wayne Co., Indiana, lists as blacksmiths Parker Jewett, his son Benjamin Jewett, and another son John J. Jewett.)

HISTORY OF CARROLL COUNTY, INDIANA

by J. C. O'Dell, pp 279-280

MRS. MALISSA LONG.

Mrs. Malissa Long, one of the most highly esteemed residents of Democrat township, is the daughter of Josiah and Isabelle (Schripture)[sic] Jewett, and was born in Decatur county, Indiana, on April 30, 1846. Mrs. Long's parents were also both natives of Decatur county. The Jewetts had emigrated to Indiana from Ohio and were early settlers in Decatur county, while Isabelle Jewett's parents had come to Indiana either from Ohio or Virginia. Josiah Jewett, who was a blacksmith, after his marriage lived twelve miles from Greensburg on a farm and there followed his trade for many years. In March, 1854, when Mrs. Long was eight years old, the family emigrated to Carroll County, Indiana, and settled in Burlington, where they lived for a number of years. During this period her father followed his trade. Subsequently, however, the family removed to a farm one mile from Burlington, where Mrs. Long lived until her marriage.

On June 11, 1875, Malissa Jewett became the wife of William Long and after their marriage they settled on the farm where she now lives, two miles east of Cutler, in Democrat township. To Mr. and Mrs. Long were born ten children, four of them died in infancy. The six living children are: Garfield, who lives on the home place; Maggie, the wife of Ora Ayres, of Flora; John, who operates his mother's farm; Dora, the wife of Irwin Flora; Emma, the wife of George Squires; and Roscoe, who lived on his father's farm in Clay township.

Mrs. Long is a devout member of the Methodist Episcopal church at Bald Hill. She is a well-known woman in the township and is greatly respected by all her neighbors.
(Note by B. Broman: Malissa was the third wife of William Long who divorced her and married a fourth time. William Long fought in the Civil War, Co. K 72nd Regt. Ind. Volunteer Infantry, and also Co. E 44th Regt.)

(Note from B. Broman: Robert Perry, a grandson of Hannibal Jewett's daughter Ellen has shared the following with me: "As a small child, my mother and I lived about twenty miles from the Jewett Home Place as it was known then. We were frequent visitors. The farm was quite extensive and very well maintained. The home was a two story structure of wood and well constructed. Farm consisted of a quite large barn built into the side of a low hillside. The lower section was for livestock. The ground level contained tack rooms, granaries and the uppermost story was for the hay. The favorite playground of us kids. Grandpa Ham, due to his Brethren beliefs did not believe in powered equipment and prided in his horses and mules. He travelled everywhere in his buggy. The blacksmithing trade continued here on the farm. There was a large shop at the farm and as I recall his sons were skilled also as they maintained all of the farm tools and machinery.

During the depression, when money was nonexistent,, all of the family would go to the farm and pick blackberries, gooseberries and cherries for sale in town so that the taxes on the place could be paid. There was also a nice orchard with peach and apple trees."

This web-site is an incredible compilation of all sorts of information on many possible spellings of the name which most of us here in the United States spell as "Jewett." The web site has been designed and is run by Dave Jowitt who has registered the names Jowitt/Jowett/Jewett and variants with the Guild of One Name Studies. He is interested in all branches and aspects of the name and not just his own line which he has tracked back to Hartshead, between Bradford and Halifax, in the middle of the 18th century.

Origins of the Name - Juliana's Son or Norman Noble?

There are two main schools of thought as to the origin of the surname. One is that it comes from Henri de Juatt, a Norman who lived in England during the 11th century and is alleged to have been given lands in Bredbury in Cheshire by William the Conqueror (though I can find no record of this in the Doomsday Book). He was knighted and participated in the pilgrimage and assault on Jerusalem in the First Crusade, 1096-1099. The family then probably spread out to Derbyshire and, eventually Yorkshire where roots were firmly planted. Possible descendants of Henri include William Juet who lived in Huntingdonshire in 1273 and Robert Jouet of Somerset, known to be alive in 1327. Though there is no known Jowett population in Somerset, the Jowetts in Ivinghoe, Buckinghamshire, known to be present in the late 16th century and probably earlier than this too, are probably descendants of William. Whether this lends support to this particular theory is uncertain.

The other probable source of the name is that it is derived from a personal name - a diminutive of Juliana, variously found as Joetta, Jowet, Jouuet and Jowett which was popular in the 13th and 14th centuries. An example as late as 1438 is found in Jowett Barton who lived in York. As well as Jowitt/Jowett, another modern form of the name is Jewett and this is how the name was probably pronounced originally.

Though there are other theories, (e.g "little Jew", from a Jute tribe, or of more recent French origin), the truth as to the origin probably lies with a foot in both of the above camps. My own belief is that the Bradford Jowetts at least, being so pointed in distribution, are of the Juliana line. However, I would be delighted to find proof to the contrary! What is certain is that there is a comradery between Jowetts and/or Jewetts on both sides of the Atlantic and beyond which has resulted in much work on the name for over a century now.

Whatever the origin though, it is clear that the name Jowitt/Jowett and other variants did consolidate dramatically in the Bradford area of the West Riding of Yorkshire and the main concentration of the name is still in that area. More specifically, it is thought that most present day Jowitts are descended from ancestors in the village of Clayton, a township of Bradford parish. The distribution of IGI entries before 1600 confirms this distribution, though there are also significant outposts in Wilne (Derbyshire) and Ivinghoe in Buckinghamshire (the descendants of William of Huntingdonshire?). Looking at some early records of the name, the polltax of 1379 shows nine entries for the name in the Bradford area, while the muster rolls of Bradford in 1539 show thirteen entries for Jowett ("Jooet") in the area, including six "Bills," five archers and 2 "not able."

The two most common modern spellings of the name in Britain are Jowett and Jowitt, which were virtually interchangeable up until about 1850 (though with a general trend for Jowett in Bradford/Halifax and Jowitt in Leeds), many person using both spellings at various stages of their lives. In contrast, medieval spellings are plenty, many have just one "t," sometimes followed by an "e," e.g. Adam and John Jowete of Clayton (1379) and William Jowet of the adjoining township of Thornton (1379). Early use of the double "t" was found in 1439 in John Jouett of Thornton.

Other early variations include Jooet, Joet, Joiet, Jewet, Jowytt, Joyte and Joyet, all of which probably reflect the earlier pronunciation of the name. Indeed, as the name spread to other parts of the country, particularly East Yorkshire and the North East of England, the form Jewitt becomes increasingly more common. The American descendants of Joseph and Maximillian Jowett still use the form Jewett.

Jowett or Jewett?

There is an on-going debate as to the correct surname for Joseph and Maximillian - were they Jowett or Jewett? This has bee fueled by FC Jewett's famous genealogy which uses the form Jewett throughout. I hope to put the record straight and out an end to this tedious arguing!

The primary evidence (e.g. the Bradford Parish Registers and the will of Edward, father of Joseph and Maximillian) clearly uses the form Jowett. This is irrefutable and I welcome anyone to check out the original records to confirm this. Jowett is by far the dominant form in the registers at this time. For example, between 1599 and 1615 I have found 95 entries for the name in the Bradford Burials register - 90 for Jowett, 5 for Jewett. This is typical of the records of the time.

In other words, FCJ is wrong in his interpretation here. (Despite this error I would fully recommend anyone researching Jewetts in America to obtain a copy of this otherwise excellent piece of research.)

However, we have so far only discussed the written form. During this period language was very much a spoken thing; the vast majority of the population could neither read nor write and names in particular were only written down on very rare occasions, normally by clerics or servants to the monarch or landowner. These local people that could write (e.g. Joseph and Maximillian) signed their name Jowett (see Hazen, NEGR 1940).

It is significant that the name, when written down in Bradford by a local person, is written as Jowett, but when written down by non-local people or those outside of the West Yorkshire area it becomes Jewett. Examples of this included the muster rolls of 1539, which were all written down as Jooet, and of course Joseph and Maximillian's American contemporaries towards the end of their lives who used the form Jewett which stuck and continues to this day.

It is a shame that we will never know exactly what a Bradford accent in 1600 really sounded like, but this all implies that the name was pronounced Jewett.

So the answer to the question Jowett or Jewett is really quite simple: write it as Jowett, pronounce it as Jewett!

I have deliberately avoided discussing the variation of the second vowel or the number of "t"s in the name. To argue that would be sad in the extreme. Also bear in mind that the arguments here are relevant to 15th and 16th century England. The situation now is very different, though the two are (and always have been) variants of the same name so one could also argue what does it matter!

. . . . . she never doubted
His grace on this wide earth, she there and then found help enough from that glorious Prince — when she had the greatest need for favor from that highest Judge, that, Lord of Creation, He would keep her against the greatest danger!

Albert W. Haley, Jr., graduated from Temple University in 1952 with a B.A. in English. After a year's graduate study at Pennsylvania State University, he left the academic environment; he believes that subsequent work in factories has actually helped his writing.

Over the years, Haley has had original poetry and works translated from the Anglo-Saxon published in various magazines, including Modern Images Quarterly Anthology. In 1978, Branden Press (Boston) published his translation of BEOWULF. Other manuscripts and poems are ready for publication.
