Contemplations of your President

My father was a very detailed and organized person and, among other things, kept a log of the weather at his home in mid-coast Maine. He dutifully recorded, daily (and often several times a day), his observations of the weather which also included his personal notes. It was normal for him to comment "miserable wind" or "ridiculous" in his description as he was no fan of the winter season. My Dad died in 1997 prior to a lot of the technology we take for granted today. I admit to being a technology "junkie", but he would have been truly excited with GPS navigation, the internet, and today's weather stations. I had given him a computer and he was somewhat comfortable with it but occasionally I would get a telephone call with a problem he couldn't solve. This spring I discovered that a weather station was available which was self-contained, simple to install, and included interfacing with the internet. It is made by Ambient Weather and displays / records / uploads temperature, dew point, wind speed & direction, barometric pressure, and more several times a minute. Not only that, but, by the addition of a video camera, it uploads a picture every three minutes. All this can be seen on the internet at www.weatherunderground.com with a few simple mouse clicks. He would have been so excited and I couldn't wait to install one at each house. It allows me to keep an eye out on my homes when we are not there.

This spring, the JFA directors held a teleconference to discuss the ongoing matters of the JFA and specifically scheduling the next reunion, we are close to announcing the date but we need to make sure the church, etc. are available to us at that time. As soon as it is final, we will announce the details on the JFA Facebook Page.

We also discussion of how to improve dues and publication fee payments. Less than half of the people on the mailing list pay dues or publication fees each year. Those people are paying extra so that the non-paying members can continue to receive the publication.

The JFA Facebook page (www.Facebook.com/JewettFamilyOfAmerica) continues to be a success with almost 200 "likes". Please realize this is your page and we would hope that you would post any items of interest to the JFA community. Make sure you check it periodically for current information on JFA happenings.

Directors Barbara Shaw and Bernice (Bunny) Mansir (also known as the twins) have been busy for the last several years gathering information on early Jewetts buried in the Rowley Burial Ground. Last year they gave me a copy of their typed manuscript complete with pictures of the various gravestones. Barbara has reviewed the book as it is and provided additional information and corrections. We have also decided to reorganize it so that the numbering and layout matches information previously published. We hope to have it available to members in 2015.

Toujours le même,

Ted Jewett

The Family Business – Fighting Fires in Miami, Dade, Florida

Ivan and Antonia (JFA #18,293) Chavez
Miami Herald Aug 8, 2014

Flipping through the pages of the 2015 South Florida Firefighters Calendar, one photo stands out among the barrage of bulging biceps and rock hard pecs: A shirtless set of twins and a salt-and-pepper hunk flanking a striking female model clad in firemen's bunker pants and a sports bra, Jessica Alba abs exposed.

No, it's not a photobomb, and the young lady is actually not a model. That's Jasmine (28), a firefighter with the Hialeah Fire Department, joined by her brothers Christian (Miami Beach Fire Rescue) and Ivan Jr. and their father Ivan Sr. (both City of Miami Fire Rescue).

Since the South Florida Firefighters Calendar started its promotional push to get the 2015 calendars moving, confusion about Jasmine's presence is common at the events, usually packed with women looking to ogle a hero or two. "When the ladies come to get their calendars signed, they would be wondering what I was doing there. They don't get that we're a family until we are all introduced. They just think it's three hot dudes and one lady ruining the photo! But when it's explained they are always like "You go girl!""

Firefighting goes back three generations in this family: The children's grandfather was Douglas Jewett (JFA #18,235), a veteran of the Dade County Fire Rescue and an influential consultant throughout Latin America and the Caribbean on modern urban search and rescue techniques. He tipped his son-in-law about hiring at the City of Miami fire department in 1989 and Ivan Sr., a former Marine, signed up.

His choice made him the favorite at career days, showing up to his three children's school in a fire truck and full fireman regalia. Even though his sons went on to get college degrees, they decided to follow their father's footsteps, a move that Ivan Sr. says is telling of the younger generation's commitment to the job. "A lot of the young guys have college degrees and have an opportunity to go off and do things where they can go own a big house, but credit should be given to these guys for choosing a career that economically undershoots their value but multiplies their value to society."

Jasmine was hired by the Hialeah Fire Department at age 19 and says she had to earn the respect of her co-workers through hard work and commitment. "Maybe the most difficult thing about being a woman in the fire department is that there's a lot of testosterone in the station. In the beginning, it was more challenging, but every individual needs to prove themself. As a woman you come in and you gotta hold your own. You gotta kick butt and show them you are here for a reason. "

South Florida Calendar founder Lt. Luis Espinosa convinced Christian to round up his reluctant family for the calendar. The photo shoot took place at the Hialeah Firestation No. 7 training tower after the family all spent three months with a strict diet and exercise regimen. But Ivan Sr. assures that they all took their fitness seriously before the shoot: "This is a job where you stay in shape or suffer the consequences."

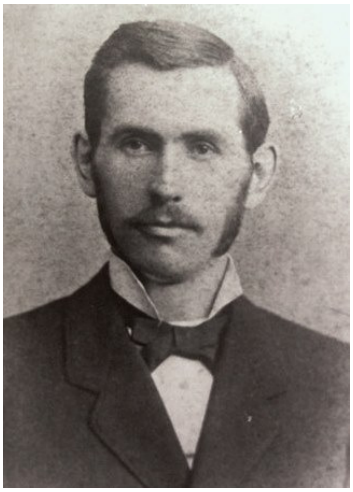
Though the eye candy is the calendar's obvious draw, the funds raised go to benefit local charities, raising $240,000 over the past two decades for organizations like Here's Help, A Safe Haven for Newborns and Friends Forever Humane Society. "That's the only reason we do it," says Ivan Sr. "We are old school firefighters, just do your job and don't wait for credit. We've gotten to talk to the folks who benefit from the calendar and it's awesome to be involved in something like this."

Leander Hastings Jewett Family
(JFA #4,064)

Initial information supplied by Arthur Wiknik Jr.

A communication from Arthur Wiknik

"My family has owned a vacation home in Waterford, Maine since 1953. As a young boy I remember my father showing us the rock carving after he discovered it while hunting. I am now 65 years old and was always curious about its history. Ironically, several people I spoke with who have lived in the area their entire life were not aware it. The rock is literally in the middle of the woods on an abandoned road that is now a snowmobile trail in winter and an ATV trail at other times. It is possible to drive to the rock in a pickup truck."



Leander was born on April 4, 1851 in Sweden, Main to Milton and Eliza (Whitcomb) Jewett. The cover photo is from a carving purportedly made by Leander in the backwoods of main between 1868 and 1873. During that time Leander most likely spent time working as a logger.

Leander graduated from Bryant Business College in Portland, Main in 1875, whereupon he moved to Illinois and went to work for William Deering at the Deering Harvester Works. William Deering came from a very successful family. His father operated a woolen mill in South Paris, Maine, about 10 miles from Sweden, Maine. For his own part, William established a drygoods business in Maine and became quite wealthy. In an effort to expand his range of businesses he lent $40,000 to E.H. Gammon in 1870 as capital for the Marsh Grain Harvester Company, in Plano, Illinois. When Gammon's health failed in 1873 William moved to Illinois to take over the company. It is likely that Leander was already known to Mr. Deering prior to Deering's move to Illinois, and with that knowledge an agreement of employment upon completion of Leander's education may have been made. While the preceding is mere speculation, it is known that Leander took on the position of cashier for the Deering company in 1875, and retained that position through at least 1883.

While in Illinois Leander married Sarah Freeman, on November 14, 1878. Sarah was born in Brookfield, Vermont, to Augustus and Lucinda (Bigelow) Freeman. They moved to Chicago, Illinois in 1880, when the Deering factory was relocated to a site with better access to labor and transportation. It was here that their first child, Eve Marie was born on April 20, 1880. In 1883 Leander moved his family from Chicago to the village of Broken Bow, in Custer County, Nebraska. Accompanying the Jewett family in the move was Charles H. Sanderson, a native of New Hampshire that Leander developed a close friendship with while working at the Deering Harverster Company.

Leander and his family quickly integrated themselves into the rural village, and Leander was among the charter members of the First Methodist Church in Broken Bow when it was organized in May 1883. The initial sermon was preached in a store, however, by later that year a small brick church had been built in the south part of the town, and served as the Methodist sanctuary and as a community auditorium. The building remained in use until 1898, when a larger building was erected. While living in Broken Bow Leander and his wife had two additional children, both daughters, Perley, born in 1886 and Hazel, born in 1890.

In addition to ranching, Leander worked as a banker. In October 1883 he established the Custer Community Bank, the first bank in Broken Bow. S.H. Burnham of Lincoln was established as the president, and Leander acted as the cashier. The bank was reorganized on February 15, 1886 as the First National Bank, after the investment of a large sum of money by O.P Perley. S.H. Burnham remained president, Leander remained the cashier, and Mr. Perley became the assistant cashier. Leander continued to be active with the bank until 1899, at which point he was on the board of directors. In October of 1899 Leander left the bank when it was reorganized into the Broken Bow State Bank.

In the spring of 1884, the village was incorporated, in order to deal with the complexities of a growing community, having a population of about 1600. The town really began to grow when it was learned that a rail line would go through town. In 1886, the B&M Railroad completed a line into Broken Bow, and train service began. The train service was not without its excitement, and in 1887 on a train out of Linscott, Nebraaska, heading toward Anselmo, Nebraska, a pair of cowboys decided to liven up the ride by terrorizing the passengers with gun play. The cowboys disembarked in Anselmo, and then attempted the same with the town. Refusing to leave without whiskey, the two ran afoul of the sheriff and both killed in a gun fight. Leander happened to be on the train, and commented that "The crowd was a little too rough for him."

In 1888, Leander was among the community members that banded together to incorporate a stock company towards the construction of a water works system for the town. The company was established for $50,000. The company was established due to the prohibitively high cost of fire insurance in the town.

In addition to his other activities, Leander was a member of several fraternal societies. In July 1885 Leander was one of the founding members of the of the Grand Lodge of the Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons of Broken Bow, Nebraska. One year later, on July 21, 1884 Leander helped to organize Lodge #119 of the Independent Order of the Odd fellows, of which he was the initial secretary of the organization. Leander was also the president of the Custer County Fair Organization from 1897 through 1899. In 1903 he was the president of the committee which overseeing the first annual Old Settlers Association Picnic, which took place 26 yeasrs after the organization of the county.

In the late 1890's Leander was made the post master for Broken Bow, and served in that capacity for many years. He was assisted in his work by his daughter Eva, who was the deputy post-mistress until her marriage in 1899.

Life on the prairie was difficult, and the town saw many severe blizzards. The blizzard of 1913 was one of the most severe on record. According to personal accounts, the strom began as a light raing on the night of Thursday, March 14, 1913 and then turned to snow. After the snow began the a strong north wind developed turning the mild storm into a raging blizzard. The storm was said to have been so severe that it was unsafe to leave shelter, even to check on nearby animals. Heavy livestock losses were experienced by many farmers and stockmen. Leander had a heard of about 95 heavy stock, along with younger cattle down by the Dismal River, and he lost 40 of them in the storm, as they wandered into the river. By Leanders own account, the younger, lighter, cattle were able to cross the river on the drifted snow, but the heavier cattle went through the snow and became mired in the river, drowning or dying from exposure.

Triple Funeral in Canaan New York

From: The Chatham Courier of April 21, 1938.

The most ghastly catastrophe to befall Chatham in the past 35 years at least, snuffed out three lives shortly after 11 o'clock Monday night when a Boston and Albany passenger train struck a sedan on Main Street crossing. Probably never before have local residents been called upon to witness a more awful picture than that of the three lifeless bodies of Mrs. Mabel Fingar, 44, of Canaan; Mrs. Jennie H. Fowler, 44, of Canaan; Mrs. Edith F. Jewett, 48, of Canandaigua; after they had been catapulated from the demolished car in which they had been riding, and lay scattered not far from the grade crossing, one some 50 feet away. Percy Fingar, of Canaan, husband of one of the dead and driver of the illfated car, miraculously escaped with comparatively minor injuries. Soon after the crash he was rushed to Ghent Community Hospital where Dr. Oscar Wilcox, Chatham physician, treated him for multiple scalp and face lacerations and abrasions about the legs and hands. Numerous stitches were required to close the wounds, two of which were in an eyelid. He was allowed to return home that same night.

Mrs. Fowler is survived by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hallenbeck, Hudson; John Hallenbeck, Hudson a brother, several sisters, Mrs. Leland Haywood, Sunnyside Mrs. Claude Hawver, Mrs. Harold Twiss and Mrs. Howard Holt, all of Hudson; also her husband and a son, Ellsworth, of Canaan. Mrs. Jewett is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Fowler.

Mrs. Fingar, besides her husband, is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bither, of Canaan; a sister, Mrs. Ira Finch, Canaan; a brother, Henry Bither, Canaan; and her daughter, Delia Fingar, who is employed in the southern part of the state. Miss Fingar had phoned her parents that she would be home, at Canaan, to visit them the evening of the accident.

Mrs. Edith M. Jewett leaves her husband, Captain William Jewett, connected with the veterans' hospital Canandaigua; a brother, Minard E. Fowler, of Canaan; her mother, Mrs. Augusta Fowler, Canaan. She was visiting her Canaan home where it is said her mother has been ill for the past week.

It is understood that the party had been in Hudson attending a moving picture show and were on their way home when their car was struck by the train. It is the theory of many who have pieced evidence together as well as possible that it had been the intention of Fingar to take the Railroad avenue route thru Chatham to Canaan which avoids the crossing but that something had suddenly caused him to change his mind and that he swung the car suddenly across the tracks to go through Main Street

William Jewett was born 25 Jan 1887 in New York City, NY. He married Edith M Fowler 17 Jul 1917 in NY. Edith was born in Jul 1890 NY to Eugene F Fowler and Mary Augusta. It is not known if the couple had any children.
William was the son of Robert C Jewett, grandson of Nathan W Jewett, great-grand son of Perry Jewett (JFA #2,873), 2gg Nathan Jewett, 3gg Icabod Jewett, 4gg Eleazer Jewett, 5gg Eleazer Jewett, 6gg, Jeremiah Jewett, 7gg Joseph Jewett
