GREETINGS

Dear Kinsman:

Once again it is my pleasure to bring you the greetings of the officers of the Jewett Family of America, and to remind you that we have been an active family association for 57 years. Few remain of the original membership of the organization, founded in Rowley in 1910. It is our privilege to continue the work so ably laid out for us by our forebears, and to leave a strong family heritage for our children.

Our membership continues to grow slowly but solidly. During 1966, 22 new members were added to our rolls. To our family records have come additional records and items of interest, and to you who have so willingly contributed to these archives, we send our appreciation. To other members who have information and vital statistics which you would like to have included in the records, we urge you to forward them to our secretary.

This Yearbook is the tenth in this series so ably compiled and edited by our former Secretary and Treasurer, Everett D. Jewett. It serves the purpose of keeping our widely scattered family informed of the past and present activities, and of notes of interest.

On July 8th a family gathering for young and old will be held in Rowley. We urge you to be present to make this reunion a success, and may we move forward this year to make this a larger and more enthusiastic Family Association.

Toujours le meme,

Roger Jewett, President

REUNION IN ROWLEY, MASSACHUSETTS

SATURDAY, JULY 8, 1967

The "Gathering Place" for the 1967 reunion of the Jewett Family of America will again be the First Congregational Meeting House in Rowley, Mass. Over the years this church has provided the Jewett Family with a "gathering place" for many reunions here. We are grateful indeed for this hospitality on the part of the members of this church.

The committee planning the reunion are working on a one day program with morning and afternoon sessions. Registrations will be at the church from 10:00 to 11:00 a.m. At the morning gathering there will be an organ recital from 10:30 to 11:00, and the morning session will open at 11:00 a.m. with President Roger Jewett presiding. At the opening session we will receive Rev. George L. Cory, minister of the church, who will bring words of welcome and a brief talk, "The Throne of Grace." There will be a greeting from the town of Rowley by the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and we will renew our spirits and hope in the Jewett Family Pledge and in the singing of the Jewett Patriotic Song.

We plan to have at the morning session a speaker who we feel sure will bring to us a thought provoking and interesting address. The morning session will close by singing the grand old hymn "Faith of our Fathers."

At 12:30 p.m. a dinner will be served in the chapel, head table guests will be introduced, other members will be recognized, and there will be an opportunity to meet and greet old friends and new.

The afternoon session will consist of transacting the necessary business of the Family Association. Reports will be made by President Jewett and our new Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. Willard Jewett, and such other reports as may be due.

The nominating committee will make its report and recommendations, and unfinished and new business will be considered.

Our reunion being planned well ahead, we would appreciate advance notice and reservations if at all possible, to enable us to provide for a successful day for all. If you are unable to make advance reservations, come just the same; provision in accord with traditional New England hospitality will be made.

The date of the reunion, being on July 8th, will be at the start of the summer months, and at a time when many of our members will be traveling. Why not plan one of your summer days with us in Rowley?

Here in 1639 came the founders of Rowley, and certainly among the leaders of the founding fathers were Deacon Maximilian and Joseph Jewett. Now in 1967, 328 years later, it is well for us to pause for a day of remembrance, a day to remember the long history of the Jewetts, their faith, their vision, their courage, their virtues, and, yes, perhaps their faults.

It has been said, in effect, that if those of us of the present forget the past and our heritage, we may well lose the future.

Rowley and the surrounding towns, several of which were once a part of the original town, are rich in history and no small part of this long history was made by Jewetts.

Lying some 30 miles north of Boston in old Essex County, Rowley is easily found by following the fine highways leading to it. Excellent motel and restaurant accomodations abound within a few miles. Ristorical sea areas are near, especially Gloucester, Rockport, Essex, Ipswich, Newbury, Newburyport and Salisbury, Mass., and then north into New Hampshire and Maine. Just a motor tour along these shores and towns is very rewarding. Inland, the treasure-trove of the past and present are worth a few hours of time and study.

At some time during the reunion we urge you to visit the new building that this church has completed in the past three years. This new addition will be used for the young people and Christian Education.

Let us together make this a rewarding, interesting and worthwhile reunion. We look forward with you to "REUNION IN 1967 AT ROWLEY."

Captain Charles Elam Jewett

CAPTAIN CHARLES ELAM JEWETT

Compiled by

MARGARET K. STANLEY

A gallant soldier, who served with distinction in the major battles of the Civil War, Captain Charles Elam Jewett's life was characterized by service and consideration for his fellow men. His tragic death occurred May 30, 1892, when he made a desperate, although futile effort, to save the lives of two little boys who were drowning in the turbulent waters of the Kern River, near Bakersfield, California. His prompt, heroic attempt to rescue the little brothers was the brave man's final act in behalf of others, as he exemplified the Biblical text, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."*

Captain Jewett was severly wounded and highly decorated for valor during his years of military service. He shared the friendship of General William T. Sherman and General Ulysses S. Grant, who held him in high esteem. Yet, Captain Jewett had no illusions regarding war, as was evidenced by expression of his philosophy when the conflict was over. He did not wish to become a member of the Grand Army of the Republic or participate in reunions of the former Union Army men, because he felt that the war was concluded - "that the dead past should bury its dead, and the reunited country live in the present with malice toward none, charity to all, and forgetting that brother had ever been arrayed against brother." In a letter to his brother in 1866, he wrote, in part:

"In my estimation, the crowning glory of General Grant's military career was shown in the fact that when he had given the death blow to the rebellion, he did not require the least humiliation from his fallen enemy, and did not even enter Richmond after capturing it, when so many before him had tried and failed to reach it. Such conduct stands out in marked contrast to the ancient custom of subjecting noted prisoners to being dragged in the triumphal procession of the conqueror, and subject to the jeers and taunts of the populace.

"In the face of such facts, who can honestly claim that Christianity is not ennobling our race, and that we are not living on a higher plane than our ancestors?

*John 15:13 - (King James Version)

"Of course, to foster and cultivate the spirit of patriotism and watchful guardianship of our liberties in our children, is of the utmost importance, but I would have THEM do the celebrating, and not have it done by the participants of the war."

The patriotic veteran was granted a small pension, but after drawing it for a year or two, he wrote to the authorities in Washington, D.C. that he thought his country owed him nothing more, and stated that no additional amounts would be received, at the same time returning the last draft which had been sent to him.

Charles Elam Jewett was born in Weybridge, Vermont, April 27, 1843, the son of Solomon W. and Mary K. Jewett. He received his preliminary education at the elementary school in Weybridge. When he was thirteen, the family moved to Racine, Wisconsin, where he continued his attendance at public school. A short time before he was to graduate from high school, and when he was less than eighteen years of age, the Civil War broke out and he enlisted April 24, 1861, in Company F, Second Wisconsin Volunteers. The regiment later became a part of the famous "Iron Brigade."

The young man had enlisted as what was known at the time as a "three-months man," but at the expiration of that period, he re-enlisted for the war. He was in the first Battle of Bull Run on July 21, 1861, and was one of the last to leave the field; then, with the assistance of a comrade, he carried a wounded friend to a place of safety. During the battle, he had received a slight wound, as he did in the Second Battle of Bull Run engagement. He was in the battles of South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, (crossing the Rappahannock below Fredericksburg), Chancellorsville and Gettysburg, where he suffered a severe wound in the right thigh from which he never fully recovered. He was confined to the hospital for almost a year.

His first commission was that of First Lieutenant in Company F, 39th Wisconsin Volunteers, on May 17, 1864, when he was discharged from the regiment. He then entered the regular army, and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant of the 10th U.S. Infantry, February 23, 1866; he was commissioned First Lieutenant July 28, 1866, and resigned April 25, 1877, Brevet rank, Brevet Captain, March 2, 1867, for gallant and meritorious services in the battle of Gettysburg. He was decorated with the Iron Cross for outstanding valor and service, and at the time of his death, the medal was found in his clothing.

On January 19, 1869, in Racine, Wisconsin, Charles Elam Jewett and the former May H. Knight, the daughter of Albert G. and Delia (Gazley) Knight, were married. Four children were born to the couple: Josephine Antonia, born in Fort Antonia, Texas, November 25, 1869; Russell McIntosh, born in Fort McIntosh, Texas, June 14, 1872; Agnes Roxbury, born in Boston, Massachusetts, September 13, 1874 and Dorothy Kern, born in Bakersfield, California, February 12, 1884.

In 1876, on account of ill health, Captain Jewett was granted a year's leave of absence, and went to Kern County, California. He purchased a ranch on Mt. Breckenridge, and having resigned from the army, lived there for three years.

At the time he resided on his Mt. Breckenridge ranch, Captain Jewett, an ingenious man, aware of the intense summer heat in the lower valley areas of the county, devised a plan for collecting and conserving natural ice, which was abundant on the lakes and ponds in the high mountains, particularly during the winter. He contructed a large ice-house for storage, and thereby made the precious commodity available to residents of Bakersfield and adjoining areas for use in the summer months.

In 1880 he became a resident of Bakersfield and soon afterward accepted the position of assistant cashier in the Kern Valley Bank, in which he continued until the time of his death.

He was a devout Episcopalian and Senior Warden and Treasurer of St. Paul's Church. He was always willing to assist when a need was indicated, and the Sunday evening before his death, because of the minister's illness, he read the service. By what seems a strange coincidence, with unusual eloquence he delivered a sermon on death, closing with the words, "So live that ye may ever be prepared for death."

Captain Jewett's consistent charity and consideration for persons in distress or sorrow was manifested when he and H. N. Stockton planned a picnic in Kern River Canyon for Decoration Day, 1892. The outing was arranged for the purpose of affording Mrs. D. R. Grenville and her four children, recently bereaved by the death of husband and father, a day of pleasure.

Among the Bakersfield residents making the trip to Kern River Canyon in the four-horse rig to spend the day were the Stocktons and their baby, Captain Jewett, Mrs. Grenville and her children, Willy, 9, Herbert 8, Nellie and Katie, and others. Willy and Herbert were wading in the river; Willy started into the water at a point where a huge rock projected into the river, creating a type of eddy on the upstream side, but just beyond it the water rushed into a narrow channel with tremendous force. The boy was caught in the treacherous, swirling current, and little Herbert, seeing his brother in mid-stream, plunged in, trying to save Willy. Captain Jewett was at water's edge a little below this point, rinsing a bucket. Hearing the cries of the boys, and seeing them struggling in the water, without an instant's hesitation, he leaped into the rapid torrent.

As his feet touched the water, the force of the current must have thrown him backward, according to the newspaper report of the tragedy, and in all probability, his head struck a boulder with great force, due to the fact that when he was seen an instant afterward, he appeared lifeless. His body was inert and limp, and rolled over many times down the roaring river at the point known as the Upper Falls. His body, next seen below the falls, appeared lifeless, and horrified, powerless friends next saw the body of little Willy, then the long curls of little Herbert floating on the water.

News of the triple tragedy reached Bakersfield as the parade for Decoration Day was being formed, and a pall of sincere sorrow settled over the community of several thousand residents.

The account of Captain Jewett's funeral, which appeared in the Daily Californian of June 2, 1892, described the services as the most impressive in the history of Bakersfield. The headlines read, "LAST RITES TO CHARLES E. JEWETT - WORTHY HONORS TO A DEAD SOLDIER - IMPRESSIVE AND TOUCHING RELIGIOUS AND MILITARY CEREMONIES."

According to the newspaper account, "At an early hour the G.A.R., the Kern Guards and the Military Band assembled at their headquarters and escorted the remains to St. Paul's Church, the band playing a dirge.

"There the cortege was met by the former rector, Rev. H. H. Clapham, who, preceded by officers of the church, the Guild and the Sunday School, led the mournful procession to the altar and then conducted the beautiful services of the Episcopal Church, after which, with the deepest feeling, he delivered a touching and eloquent eulogy in memory of one of his dearest friends."

Following the church service, a second large procession moved through the community to the cemetery, where the final resting place had been beautifully decorated by sorrowing friends. When the rector had read the last rites, military comrades fired three volleys over the grave, and the bugler sounded taps.

During his lifetime, Captain Jewett was respected for his integrity, high ideals and his kindly service, particularly to persons in need of assistance; he was known to have been a benefactor to many.

His fine attributes of character, including his sincerity and friendliness, caused his name to be enduringly inscribed on the hearts of family, friends and business associates.

The 52nd annual reunion of the Jewett Family of Mason, Michigan, was held Sunday, July 31, 1966 at Ingham County Park, Mason. Emery H. Jewett arrived at the park early in the morning and reserved a table near the entrance drive. The Jewetts were greeted by a white covered table with a beautiful arrangement of vari colored zinnias from the garden of Emery Jewett. The zinnias spoke a lovely welcome, flowers being synonymous with the Jewett family of Mason; they were reminiscent of past reunions, an inspiration and hope for the future.

The blessing was given by Mrs. Alice Jewett and a picnic dinner was enjoyed by all present. The business meeting was opened with a reading of the official prayer written in 1964 by the late Mrs. Ione A. Jewett, and read by her granddaughter, Mrs. Murl Thompson. Twenty-five members were present. Out-of-town Jewetts were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Jewett and Sue Ann of Grand Blanc, Michigan. Jewett, 1885-1964; Alton L. Jewett, 1879-1965 and George W. Jewett, 1866-1965. Twenty letters of regret, pictures and snapshots were passed around. A telegram of regret was received from Mr. and Mrs. Henri Bezenian of Montreal, Canada. The Jewett Family of America news was reported and the Yearbook was displayed for all to read. Mrs. Ward Bullen, age 85 and Mrs. Blanche Jewett, age 81, both received a box of candy for being the eldest present. Joseph L. Jewett came the farthest and won the prize of a box of nuts. Little Wendy Dawn Jewett, the youngest won a package of candy. A watermelon contest climaxed the day for the children, Sue Ann Jewett being the winner. The weather was cool and clear, a beautiful day.

Many visited Mr. Wilfred L. Jewett who was confined at Mason Hospital. The Mason Park was again the scene of another Jewett Family gathering as it has been so many times in the past.

Other travellers abroad were Mr. and Mrs, Ralph L. Morrill of Ann Arbor, Michigan, who spent five months visiting Portugal, Spain, Morocco, Gibraltar, Holland, Norway, Sweden, Scotland and England.

Our historian, Everett D. Jewett had an enjoyable trip to the British Isles last fall, and is looking forward to another tour of Scotland as soon as the opportunity arises.

Philo was the son of Solomon Wright Jewett, Sr., and the father of our member Hugh S. Jewett of Bakersfield. Mr. Hugh Jewett also writes of his early days in Bakersfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Jewett of Minneapolis are enjoying their grandchildren, especially, at their weekly get- togethers. Their daughter, Kathy, is in her final year of nurses training, but found the time to go fishing for swordfish last summer, off the coast of Rhode Island.

Mr. Raymond D. Jewett sends us many clippings, for which we are very grateful. One such was of two poems by John Howard Jewett, written in 1887; "Between Sun and Sun" and "Illusions."

Mrs. Margaret Head reports that she is feeling much better after major surgery late in 1965. She lives at Montebello, California. Her cousin, Edwin Perkins, made a trip to England and visited the area where his ancestors had lived. Mr. Perkins attended services at the Church where his grandfather had been a choir boy, and where their ancestors had worshiped for over 800 years.

Mr. Herbert T. Magruder of Staten Island, New York, whose wife, Dorothy is a member, sent us a most interesting account of the famous unsolved murder case of April 5th, 1877 in New York. George W. Jewett and Orville Jewett were the victims, but who was the murderer?

Mrs. Madelon Lindsay of Michigan Jewetts sends us the following notes:

Mrs. Lynn Jewell (Florence Mary Jewett) of Leslie, Michigan, was honored at a banquet, as founder of The Leslie Music Club, established fifty years ago. Florence is a talented organist and played at The Leslie Congregational Church for many years. Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clayton (Jane) Jewell is the present organist there.

Mrs. Joan (Jewett) Butterfield has leased a large building on M.A.C. Ave. in East Lansing, Michigan, where she has opened a new Beauty Shop, and to which she has moved the headquarters for her Air Line Hostesses, Model and Charm School.

Mr. Wilfred L. Jewett donated a portion of his farm, west of Mason Golf Course, to the county for a new road, named Jewett Road. This is especially appropriate as the farm, which Joseph W. Jewett pioneered, about 1870, is directly across Tomlinson Road from Jewett Road.

We are delighted to add a news item from the September 18, 1966 issue of the Detroit Free Press, to our large collection of Jewett material. This clipping pertains to the farm of Jess and Jane Miller on Jerusalem Road in Washtenaw County, Michigan. This large farm was purchased by Eleazer Jewett, Mrs. Miller's great-great-grandfather, in 1836, and is one of the few farms in Washtenaw County that have not yielded to twentieth century progress. We are indebted to Madelon Lindsay of Detroit for this item.

We are grateful to others who send us news of Jewett happenings throughout the country. Although they may not all be acknowledged, they are carefully preserved in our archives. We would appreiciate pictures, particularly of Jewett gatherings, for insertion in our yearbook.
