Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors
Sturbridge Village, Mass., Sept. 26, 1981

Annual Dues (including Year Book) $8.00 Life Membership $50.00
Year Book Subscription $2.50

Greetings From the President to the Members of The Jewett Family of America

DEAR KINSMEN,

It is my privilege once again to extend greetings to the members and friends of the Jewett Family of America.

The year 1980 passed quickly with our Reunion and Directors' Meeting on July 26th at Salem, Mass. being the high point. At the Directors' Meeting, we accepted, with regrets, the resignation of Malburne Jewett Peabody. Frank Harold Jewett was nominated to fill the vacancy, and we are happy to say, he accepted.

Our Reunion brought to my attention that I had made a mistake in names in the top picture on page 22 of the 1980 Year Book. The young girl is not Matilda, but Della #5398, and the boy not Wm. F., but Ned Martin #5399. Mrs. Gladys Rundlett, another descendant of Charles Stephen made the correction. This is one of the reasons I am hoping to collect and print old family photos while there are still descendants alive to make the necessary corrections. Roger Jewett has graciously sent a few family portraits along with the available genealogical numbers.

We are looking forward to two important dates for the Jewett Family of America, a Reunion in 1984 or 1985, and our 350th Anniversary, which falls in 1988. The Board of Directors and our Year Book will keep you apprised of developments.

Please remember to keep our Secretary informed of any change in address you may make. It is necessary to keep our records up to date.

If you have any suggestions for improving our family association, or increasing membership and interest, they would be greatly appreciated. A letter to me, or any of the Board of Directors, will be introduced at our meeting on Sept. 19th and discussed.

Now, till we meet again,

Toujours le meme,

WILLIAM H. JEWETT

Minutes of Directors' Meeting

Board Members Present
Seated: Dorothy Brigham, E. Tilson Peabody, Edna Jewett, Dorothy Jewett Stitt, Truda Jewett. Standing: Alan Jewett, Frank H. Jewett, Russell Jewett, Wm. Jewett, C. Lincoln Jewett, Willard Jewett.

William H. Jewett, President, called the meeting to order at Hawthorne Inn, Salem, Mass., on July 26, 1980.

Truda Jewett read the minutes of the October 13, 1979 meeting, which were approved as read.

Willard Jewett presented the treasurer's report, Dorothy Stitt read the auditor's report. Both were approved.

William Jewett read the corresponding secretary's report which was approved.

William Jewett made a motion that we make the $2.00 application fee a permanent charge. The motion was passed.

Malburne Jewett Peabody formally resigned from the Board. His resignation was accepted and Frank Harold Jewett was nominated and approved to fill the vacancy.

The Board discussed the Jewett families 350th anniversary in 1988. Rowley, Mass. also will celebrate its 350th anniversary in 1989. It was suggested that we plan a reunion for 1988 but that we also have a meeting in either 1984 or 1985.

William Jewett suggested that the recording secretary, Truda Jewett, send a letter to the Essex Institute to thank them for their help at our reunion.

Election of the Board took place and the current Board was reelected unanimously.

The nominating committee for the new term is Alan Jewett, Dorothy Jewett Stitt and Truda Jewett.

A motion was made to thank Willard Jewett for his 15 years of work as treasurer. He has agreed to remain as treasurer for one more year.

A motion was made to allocate monies necessary to insure that the year book will have return postage.

The next Directors' meeting will be held on September 26, 1981 at Sturbridge Village in the Public House. Russell Jewett will make the arrangements.

4:30 — William Jewett adjourned the meeting.

Respectfully submitted, TRUDA JEWETT, Recording Secretary

CAPTAIN JACK JOUET, JR.'S RIDE

Captain Jack Jouet was one of the final heroes of the Revolution, and his daring-do saved Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry and most of the Virginia Assembly from capture by the British in 1781.

His story has been largely a Virginia secret until the Bicentennial when writers and historians began to retell the story of his brave 40-mile ride through the night to Monticello at Charlottesville, Va., to warn Thomas Jefferson of the imminent arrival of Lt. Colonel Tarleton and his raiding party.

Lord Cornwallis hoped to strike a vital blow to the colonies by capturing the Governor of Virginia and the Assembly, and sent "The Hunting Leopard" to stage a surprise raid.

Captain Jack Jouet spotted the British at the Cuckoo Tavern in Louisa Court House the night of June 3, 1781, and guessed their mission. Saddling his thoroughbred, he rode 40 miles in 6½ hours to save the young nation's heroes. In so doing, he saved our country from possible catastrophe!

The Virginia Assembly passed a laudatory resolution concerning the courage and gallantry of Captain Jack, and in time, he received "an elegant sword and a pair of pistols" in appreciation.

Jack Jouet was descended from Daniel Jouet of the Isle of Re, France, who was a Huguenot and left France in 1636 for religious reasons, arrived in Plymouth, England, and sailed for Rhode Island. His ancestors included Gabriel Jouet, the Mayor of Angers (1623), and Mathew de Jouhet, a courtier who was First Master of the Horse.

Pierre Jouet, second son of Daniel, went south to Virginia and one of his sons was John Jouet, Jack's father. Both father and son signed the Abermarle Declaration, renouncing allegiance to King George.

In 1782, Jack removed to Mercer Co., Ky., and in 1784 married Sallie Robards. They had 12 children, among them Matthew Harris Jouett, the famous portrait painter, and "Fighting Jim" Jouet who became a rear admiral in the U.S. Navy.

At the Battle of Mobile Bay, it was to Lt. Commander "Fighting Jim" that Admiral Farragut said, "Damn the torpedoes, Jouet! Full speed!

The Jouet coat-of-arms includes a bent scimitar, the Currycombe and three golden fleur-de-lis, showing that they were allied with the Blood Royal of France and at the head of all nobility.

No doubt the Jouets are our French cousins!

POEMS BY CORA-MAE JEWETT

We received a fine book of verses entitled, "Cacti In The Roses," by Cora-Mae Jewett, of Sedona, Ariz., a 10th generation Jewett in America.

She received nice acclaim for her verses, a reviewer saying, "There is so much richness of expression in this volume, and such a world of good thought that moves into genuine, strong poetry."

Next year we will print some verses, with her permission, and also some offerings from other family members.

FREEDOM WINS AMERICA'S CUP

A giant American Flag is run up on the backstay of "Freedom," after the victory.

The 1980 America's Cup races were won by Freedom, skippered by Dennis Connor, over Australia, in five races off Newport, R.I.

Family Gatherings

Jewett-Pearl Connecticut Family Reunion

The descendants of the late Ebenezer Jewett II and Nancy (Jennings) Jewett held their 42nd family reunion Sunday, September 7, 1980 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Pearl, Hampton, Conn.

A pot luck dinner was served at one o'clock followed by business meeting and afternoon of lawn games and fellowship. A Nominating Committee for 1981 was elected.

The oldest present was Earl Overbaug, 85, of Hampton; the youngest, Roberta Overbaug, age 8, who came with her family; the greatest distance, Westford, Mass. Twelve births, five marriages and three deaths have been recorded this year.

Mrs. Elsie A. (Bowen) Griggs, Abington, Conn. has brought the genealogy of the family of the late Mrs. Susan A. H. (Jewett) Howe Griggs up to date and presented to the reunion Historian Mrs. Austin E. Emmons, of Columbia, Ct. Two family Scrapbooks of the late Mrs. C. Maude (Pearl) Amidon of Willington, Ct. have been given to the family files by her family.

Secretary of this Conn. group is Mrs. L. Reginald Thayer, 23 Woodbridge Road, Newington, Conn. 06111. All members of the Jewett-Pearl Families are welcome to attend the annual reunions.

The First Annual Reunion of the Descendants of George Washington Jewett and Laura Hand Jewett

The children of Frederick A. Jewett decided to have a reunion, and named August 2nd, 1980. The reunion was held at Owl's Head Ski Chalet and was a big success. Many came from far and wide to attend. There was a registration time before lunch and children were introduced to aunts and uncles never before heard of! After lunch there was a general get acquainted period for pictures and reminiscing. A light supper was served and later that evening a dance, well attended by mostly the young folk, was held.

When Everett Douglas Jewett was secretary of The Jewett Family of America, Inc., he spent much time unraveling the line of John Jewett of Stratham, New Hampshire. It is recorded in the 1962 year book. Mrs. Leverett (Pearl) Jewett has been very keen in keeping records on Leverett's family; Frederick A. Jewett; George W. Jewett; George Rexford Jewett; David Jewett; John Jewett; Benjamin Jewett; Jonathan Jewett; Ensign Joseph Jewett; Deacon Maximilian Jewett; Edward Jewett. This is Known as the "Quebec Line" to the genealogists of the family.

'Neath the Eyes of Owl's Head

A tribute to the memory of Frederick A. Jewett and his wife, Avis B. Jones, presented by their first daughter-in-law, Pearl M. (Brown) Jewett.

The eyes of this mighty giant have kept watch as the eons rolled,
It can share with us many secrets as the pages of history unfold.

It watched across Lake Memphremagog as our early ancestors came,
To settle in Stanstead County and gave Jewett's Point its name.

It was late in the eighteenth century, recorded as seventeen-nine-nine;
Third great uncle David made his appearance, thus began the Quebec Line.

To follow in his footsteps came his brother Nathaniel,
Who was the great, great grandfather of Frederick, who married Avis Belle (Jones).

Great grandfather was another David, first born Canadian male kin,
Who returned to the land of his father, as duty called him.

North Bangor, N.Y. marks his resting place, six years after the Civil War. (1861-1865)

Son George R. remained in the land of his birth, and farmed as those had before.

His wives numbered two, from Potton, Quebec; Jane Allen and Mrs. Jane (S.) George.

Two handsful of children, ole Owl's Head watched, as this ancestor's family was forged.

A stone marks his grave in Vale Perkins; still in sight of our guardian friend
And it watched o'er his son George W., one of the above mentioned ten,

Who was actually born in New York State but returned to the land of his kin.
He chose himself a wife, Laura (Hand); soon F.A., an only son followed him.

As he turned his hand at farming, the second Jewett farm on Peabody Road.
But "Pa" took over the Hand-side Farm as into full manhood he strode.

In the shades and shadows of Owl's Head he and Avis raised their family.
Seven boys and five girls—filled the nest. A life well-spent — we'll all agree.

They've earned their REST, and life goes on. Toujours le meme is oft times said.
Life styled for grand-children and great ones too;
Neath the eyes of old Owl's Head.

JEWETT FAMILY REUNION IN SALEM, MASS.

It was noted that this is the 27th Family Reunion since 1855, and the 70th anniversary of The Charter (Sept. 19, 1910).

Oldest family member attending was Martin Luther Jewett, 78, of Florida, although your editor also has the name of Robert A. Jewett, 87, of Ontario.

Youngest was Seth Jewett, 4 months.

Living closest were Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Rundlett, Magnolia, Mass.

Coming farthest seemed to be a tie among several: Marilyn Jewett Gage, Michael W. Gage, Pasadena, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. John Jewett Gage of Temple, Cal.; and Mrs. James S. Arnold, Carlsbad, Cal.

Family members came from many states: Cal., Conn., Fla., Ind., Mass., N.J., N.H., Penna., and Rhode Island.

A nice statement was: "It is to be hoped we can keep the strengths which come from love and reinforcements of the family."

Minutes of the 1980 Reunion of the Jewett Family of America

July 26, 1980, Hotel Hawthorne, Salem, Mass.

General Meeting

At 10:30 a.m. William H. Jewett, President of the Board of Directors opened the meeting with welcoming remarks to approximately 80 assembled guests. There were Jewetts representing 11 states, the youngest Jewett present was 4 months old and the oldest 78 years of age.

Alan D. Jewett, 1st Vice President, introduced the Mayor of Salem, Massachusetts, Gene Levesque. Mayor Levesque spoke about the importance of the family unit in the world today and congratulated the Jewetts for their efforts in maintaining this unity. He then went on to describe Salem and the restoration process. He thanked us for choosing his city for our meeting and hoped we would return.

Alan Jewett read letters from those unable to attend the meeting.

At 10:50 Alan Jewett introduced Mr. John Wright of the Essex Institute. Mr. Wright presented a program of slides on 2½ centuries of arts and artists in the Massachusetts area. His program covered not only famous artists such as Winslow Homer, John Singleton Copley, Matthew Jewett, Benjamin West, Gilbert Stuart, Samuel Morse, but we glimpsed equally famous subjects: Mrs. Paul Revere, Mrs. John Hancock, George Washington, Nathanial Hawthorne, Cotton Mather.

11:45 — Mr. Alan Jewett thanked Mr. Wright for his interesting historical presentation. He then introduced Mrs. Thresher of the Essex Institute who said she was available to answer questions about family genealogies.

12:30 — William Jewett gave the invocation before the family dined on a delicious luncheon at the Inn.

1:30 — William H. Jewett announced the slate of officers for the forthcoming term and asked for nominations from the floor. There were none and the slate was approved as presented. A directors' meeting was scheduled for 2:00 and all Jewetts were invited to attend.

Chapter XI
Dorothy Yorke's Line

We will commence this chapter with Eleanora, the wife of Edward 1 of England, No. 115, and give you our line through Dorothy Yorke, who married Thomas Dudley.

Eleanora, daughter of Ferdinand III, King of Castile, known as Saint Ferdinand of Spain, was born in 1244. Her mother was Joan, the second wife of Ferdinand. Joan was the great-granddaughter of Louis VII of France and his wife, Constance of Costile. Saint Ferdinand was like his cousin, Saint Louis of France, a crusader. Alphonso X of Castle, called El Sabo, the wise, was a brother of Eleanora, and he bargained with Henry III of England that his son, Edward (afterwards Edward I of England) should marry Alphonso's sister, Elenora. At this time Eleanora was only 10 years old and Edward but 15. Eleanora's mother was Joanna, who came near marrying Henry of England and the graddaughter of Alice of France, who was "jilted" by Richard Coeur-de-Lion, so she decided there must be no delay in the marriage. Edward accompanied by his mother came to Spain at the appointed date and the marriage took place and at a splendid tournament Alphonso knighted his new brother-in-law. Eleanora was then sent to Paris to be educated under the care of her husband's aunt, the Queen of France. Louis IX (Saint Louis) was King of France 1226 to 1270 and his wife was Marguerite of Provence. They were married in 1234, so she was the hostess and chaperone for Eleanora at Saint Louis court.

The court in Paris was not so magnificent in the days of Saint Louis as in the later days of the Bourbon monarchs. Where the Tuileries palace was and where the Tuilerie gardens are now was probably a brick kill at that time as the name implies and where the Palais de Louvre was (where the art gallery is now) was a prison.

When you go to Paris you should visit old Paris and there you will see some of the buildings then used by royalty.

Henry III of England visited Saint Louis in 1254 to talk over the days of the crusades when they were in the Holy Land and to see Saint Louis' fine collection of curios which he had gathered, and no doubt also to see his daughter-in-law, the bride of his son, Edward. He spent eight days in Paris and while there was put up at the "Maison du Temple," the headquarters of the Knight Templers.

While she was thus in Paris Edward was wandering about the different courts of Europe; she was sent to England some months after his return. Edward's father, Henry, made over to him the principality of Wales and told him he must fight for his inheritance.

In the meantime Eleanora and Edward resided at Windsor, where a son was born tothem, whom they called John, and two other children were born to them, Eleanora and Henry. Edward decided to join the crusades and go to the Holy Land. Eleanora said she must go with him. They tried to dissuade her, but, as often quoted, she said, "Nothing ought to part those God had "joined." And as they urged the many dangers she would encounter if she went to the Holy Land, she said, "The way to Heaven is as near, if not nearer, from Syria as from England or my native Spain.

And so Prince Edward and Princess Eleanora set sail for Palestine. Saint Louis of France was to have joined them, but instead came a messenger with word that he was dead.

Edward made a great name for himself, nearly as great as that of Richard Coeur de Lion.

He was wounded by a poisoned arrow and his arm turned black. It is told how Eleanora sucked the poison and thus saved his life. Soon after Edward's recovery Leanora gave birth to a daughter, whom she named Joan d'Acre, after the name of her birthplace (Acre in Syria).

Then came the news that Edward's father, Henry III, was dead and also that their little son, John, was dead, so they turned the steps homeward, stopping at Rome, where Eleanora gave birth to a son, whom they named Alphonso, after Eleanora's brother.

Then the struggle went on with Wales. Fnally Edward agreed to give them a prince who could talk neither English nor French, and Eleanora gave birth to a son and Edward presented them with their prince, the Prince of Wales, who could talk neither English nor French, and Eleanora employed a Welsh maid to care for him so that the first words he learned would be Welsh.

And then the good queen died in th north and her remains were carried up to London and wherever they stopped Edward put up a cross.

The one at Waltham is quite noted to this day. I have been out to see it often and had hoped to find a picture of it.

One was at Charring Cross in London . It is usually said that there was a town there called Charring and hence the name. Others claim it got its name from Cher Reine (Dear Queen).

No one can calculate the results of the efforts of this good woman on Edward, who was proud and headstrong.

She was in Wales much of the time working for peace. She lived at Carnarvon Castle, where the little Prince of Wales was born.

Eleanor (Eleanora, Spanish) left one son and seven living daughters.

(The numbers are generations from Adam.)

115. Edward I, King of England, married in 1254 Eleanor of Castile. Their fourth child was Joan.

116. Joan d'Arce. She married first Gilbert de Clare, ninth Earl of Clare, third Earl of Gloucester and seventh Earl of Hereford, a descendant of Alfred the Great. She died 1307 and he died 1295. He was descended from Richard Fitz Gilbert, a lawyer, founder of the house of Clare. He came with William the Conqueror.

117. Lady Margaret de Clare. She married second Hugh, Baron d'Audley and in 1327 he was made Earl of Gloucester. She died in 1347.

118. Lady Margaret d'Audley. She married Sir Ralph de Stafford, K. G., second Baron Stafford. He was created Earl of Stafford in 1351. He died in 1372.

119. Hugh de Stafford, second Earl of Stafford, married Lady Philippa de Beaucamp, daughter of Sir Henry de Beauchamp, third Earl of Warwick, one of the original Knights of the Garter. He died 1381.

120. Lady Margaret de Stafford. She married Ralph, K. G., fourth Baron of Neville, who was born in 1350 and died in 1425 (a great-great-great-grandson of Richard de Neville, who came over with William the Conqueror in 1066). Sir Ralph was Earl of Marshal of England and created Earl of Westmoreland in 1399.

121. Alice de Neville, who married Sir Thomas de Grey of Heton (see 16f of Chapter VIII), who was a great-great-grandson of Thomas Grey of Heaton and founder of the house of Grey. Sir Thomas de Grey of Heton conspired against Henry V and was beheaded at Southampton, Aug. 5, 1415.

The Neville line is so important I give it:

1. Gilbert de Neville came with William the Conqueror in 1066 and is said to have commanded the fleet of William.

2. Geoffrey de Neville.

3. Geoffrey de Neville; founded Tupholme Priory in Lincolnshire; married Emma, daughter of Bertram de Bulmer, Lord of Brancepeth. They had a son, Henry, who was with King John at Poicton, and a daughter, Isabel. He died 1194.

4. Isabel Neville had from her mother Lordships of Brancepath and Sherriff Hatten. She married Robert Fitz-Maldred, Lord of Raby, who died in 1252. He was a son of Malfred, Lord of Raby, and grandson of Dolphin, who had Staindropshire from the Priory of Durham, 1131, and great great-grandsin of Uchtred.

5. Geoffrey Fitz Robert, Lord of Raby, etc., who assumed the name of his mother, Nellie; died 1249; married Margaret, daughter of Sir John de Longvillers of Hornby castle.

6. Robert Neville, Lord of Raby, etc., governor of Wark, Norham, Scarborough and Pickering Castle; sheriff of Yorkshire in 1262; died in 1282; buried in Friars Minor churchyard; married Ida, widow of Roger de Bertram, Baron of Milford.

7. Robert Neville married Mary, daughter of Ralph Fitz Ranulph; died 1271.

8. Ralph Neville, first Lord Neville of Raby, succeeded his grandfather. He was summoned to parliament as Lord Neville, June 23, 1295.

9. Ralph, second Lord Neville. He was summoned Nov. 20, 1331. Was a commander at the battle of Neville's Cross, 1346. Married Alice, daughter of Sir Hugh d'Audley. He died in 1367; buried in Durham cathedral.

10. John, third Lord Neville, K. G., of Raby. Summoned to parliament Feb. 24, 1368. He was with his father at Neville Cross battle. Was an admiral in the French wars. Married Maude, daughter of Henry, second Lord of Percy. He died Oct. 17, 1388. They are both buried in Durham cathedral.

11. Ralph, fourth Lord Neville and Raby, created Earl of Westmoreland Sept. 29, 1397. He was born 1350; married Margaret, daughter of Hugh, Earl of Etafford. He died 1425 No. 120).

122. Elizabeth de Grey married Sir Philip, Lord d'Arcy.

123. John, Lord d'Arcy, marrid Margry de Grey, a daughter of Henry, Lord Grey of Wilton.

124. Sir John d'Arcy married Joan de Greystock (also of royal descent).

125. Richard d'Arcy, who married Eleanor, daughter of John, fourth Lord Scrope of Upsal.

126. Sir William d'Arcy, who married January 23, 1460, Euphonia, daughter of Sir John Langston. He died May 30, 1488.

127. Joan d'Arcy, who married Sir Richard Yorke. She was a sister of Thomas d'Arcy, first Lord d'Arcy of Temple, K. G. He was summoned to parliament Oct. 17, 1529. Knighted by Henry VII. Went to Spain to aid Ferdinand . He was executed on Tower Hill, London, June 30, 1536.

128. Edmund Yorke, who married Grace .....

129. Gilbert Yorke, who married Amye Bond.

130. Edmund Yorke, who married Katherine .....

131. Dorothy Yorke, who married Thomas Dudley (of royal descent also). They came to America in 1630. (See No. 131, Chapter VIII.)

132. Anne Dudley, daughter of Governor Thomas Dudley of Massachusetts Bay Colony, was born in 1612, was married in 1628, to Simon Bradstreet, who was born in 1603 in Horbling, Lincolnshire.

She came to America with her husband and her father and mother in 1630 on the ship Arabella, coming as the founders of Massachusetts Bay Colony. "Farewell, dear England," burst from that group on the 8th day of April, 1630, as they set sail from Southampton.

They settled in Cambridge and built their home at what is now corner Brayntree and Wood street on Harvard square and her father and mother were near by.

She is noted as the first American poetess. In another chapter we will give more about the lives of these ancestors and some of her poems.

CHAPTER XII

Matilda of Flanders, who married William the Conqueror, was a splendid character and the best blood of Europe flowed through her veins. She was the sixth in descent from Alfred the Great and the ninth from Charlemagne and twelfth from Wittekind the Saxon. I am commencing this chapter with Matilda Flanders first because she is one of the finest historical characters in the great royal family and second to illustrate how these various royal lines are so closely interwoven that if you are descended from one king you are from several.

MATILDA OF FLANDERS

Matilda's line from Alfred the Great is as follows:

1. Alfred the Great, 6th King of England, married Ethelbith, daughter of Ethelran, A. D. 872-900.

2. Elstrith, daughter of Alfred the Great, married Baldwin II of Flanders.

3. Arnold the Great, son of Baldwin II.

4. Baldwin IV, who married Eleanora, daughter of Duke Richard II of Normandy.

5. Baldwin V, "the Gentle," Earl of Flanders. He was rich and powerful. He married Adelais, a daughter of Robert, King of France.

6. Matilda of Flanders. She was closely related to the Emperor of Germany and most of the royal families of Europe.

HerFlanders line was as follows:

1. Baldwin I, A. D. 858-879.

2. Baldwin II the Bald, 880-918. His wife was, as shown before, a daughter of Alfred the Great.

3. Arndolph 918, married Alisa, a daughter of Herbert II Count of Vermandoise.

4. Baldwin III married Matilda, daughter of the Duke of Saxony, A. D. 961-973.

5. Arndolph II, married Rosala.

6. Baldwin V, 7th Count of Flanders, 1036-1067. He married Alisa, sister of Henry I, of France, and their daughter.

7. Matilda of Flanders, who married William the Conqueror.

Agnes Strickland in her Queens of England tells of the courtship of William and Matilda. He having heard much of the lovely daughter of Baldwin of Flanders and of her many accomplishments. He courted for seven years. She treated him with scorn as she did not love him. William learned that the reason given was on account of the irregularity of his birth and he beat her without mercy and in her father's castle at Lille. She then consented and said: "I did not know the duke so well then as I do now. He must be a man of courage and high daring who could venture to come and beat me in my own father's palace." And so they were married and are ancestors not only of most all of the royalty, but of yours and mine. Matilda was a wonderful woman for the day. She had a great influence for good on William, which was shown not only in Normandy but in England. Miss Strickland in her Queens of England says, ',The domestic happiness which William enjoyed with his beautiful duchess appears to have been great. Ten children came to them, four sons and six daughters.

She was an expert at needle work and employed much time in weaving the celebrated piece of Bayeaux tapestry illustrating the life of William. It is 19 inches wide and 67 yards in length, called "la Tapissiere de la reine Matilda." (The tapestry of Queen Matilda.) It is in the Cathedral of Bayeux. She has there portrayed the history of the conquest of England, commencing with the visit of Harold the Saxon to the Norman court and ending with his death at the Battle of Hastings. It contains many hundreds of figures of men, horses, birds, houses, churches, etc. A wonderful piece of work. I have seen it and examined the beautiful work.

Bayeux is not far from Cheerbourg, where some of you land when going to Paris. I spent a holiday down there, but did not know when examining this work that Matilda was an ancestor of mine.

William built the tower of London for a fortress and a royal residence and left other marks in England.

She died November 2, 1083. She was buried in Caen, Normandy, which is near Bayeux.

8. Henry I of England (Beauclerc), youngest son of William and Matilda, was born at Selby, Yorkshire, England, in 1070. He died at Rouen, France, December 1, 1135. Was called Beauclerc because he was a learned man. He married Princess Matilda of Scotland, a daughter of Malcolm III, Canmore, King of Scotland, and his wife, Margaret, a granddaughter of Edmund II, King of England. We have now joined the "Adam line." Matilda of Scotland being the 110th generation from Adam. She deserves more than a passing notice.

Matilda of Scotland (born 1079) was the only princess of Scotland to share the throne of England. Her mother was Margaret, a sister of Edgar Atheling and Malcolm Canmore, the young unmarried King of Scotland married her. She, a true Saxon, greatly pleased the English. She was the instrument of God to bring Christianity throughout her husband's kingdom. She well deserved the name Matilda the Good.

Matilda was wooed by William Warren, Earl of Surrey, but declined. She pleaded devotion to a religious life, but she accepted Henry I of England.

Matilda's English ancestry and education made her marriage to Henry very popular to the Anglo-Saxon people. Matilda founded the hospital at St. Giles-in-the-Fields. She was a born architect, she superintended the building of Windsor Castle and completed the royal apartments in the Tower of London. The grounds at Windsor had been used by William the Conqueror as a hunting field.

Matilda was such a splendid character she helped her people by stipulating with Henry when she gave her consent to marry him that he would restore the ancient laws and privileges of the English people, including the laws of Alfred the Great.

She developed England by building roads and bridges.

One contemporary writer wrote, "The goodness that she did in England cannot be written."

It is claimed that the first parliaments ever held in England were held through the influence of Matilda. They held the first court in 1109 at Windsor Castle. In 1112 Henry and Matilda assisted in removing the remains of Alfred the Great and his wife, Alswith, from Newminster, close to Winchster Cathedral, to that splendid abbey of Hyde founded and endowed by Henry and Matilda. She died May 1, 1118, while Henry was in Normandy.

1. William the Conqueror married Matilda of Flandera.

2. Princess Gundred married William de Warren, Earl of Warren and Earl of Surrey. He was with William the Conqueror at the battle of Hastings.

3. William, Earl of Warren, 2nd Earl of Surrey, married Isabel de Vermandois she had been previously the wife of Robert de Bellomont, Earl of Leicester, who was with William at the battle of Hastings. (She was a daughter of Prince Hugh Magnus, son of Henry I, King of France.)

Isabel de Vermandois died 1131.

Now here is another line from Alfred the Great. Note where it joins this where William, Earl of Warren, married Isabel de Vermandois.

Gov. Thomas Dudley's Line Through His Father

1. Alfred the Great, King of England, married Ethelbith, daughter of Ethelran (see Chapter V).

2. Edward the Elder married Edgira, daughter of Earl Sigelline.

3. Princess Edgiva of England married Henry, Count of Vermandoise.

4. Hubert, Count of Vermandoise and Troyes, married Adelheld, daughter of Count of Valois.

5. Adela, Countess of Vermandoise, married Prince Hugh the Great, Count of Vermandoise (son of Henry I, King of France and his wife, Anne, of Russia, a daughter of Jaroslaus, Grand Duke of Russia. He was a brother of Philip I, King of France).

6. Lady Isabel de Vermandoise married Robert, Earl of Millent and Leicester. He died 1118. She married 2d William de Warren, Earl of Warren, son of William, Earl of Warren, and his wife, Gundred, daughter of William the Conqueror, and Matilda of Flanders. Isabel by her first husband had

7. Robert de Bellomont, second Earl of Liecster, Lord Justice of England, married Lady Amicia de Waer, a daughter of Ralph de Waer, Earl of Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridge. He died 1168.

8. Garvase Paganel, Baron Dudley, married Lady Felice, a daughter of Athelstan Dodo, a son of Geoffrey, a son of Athelstan Dodo, who built Dudley castle. Dudley castle, it is claimed, was built in 700 by a prince of Mercia called Dodo. In Domesday book it is named as belonging to William Fritz Anscalf. In 1138 it was held for Empress Maud by Ralph Paganel. It was burned by Stephen. It continued to be habitable until 1750, when a fire made it a ruin it is now.

9. Lady Hawyse Paganel, Baroness of Dudley, married John de Somerl and by right of his wife Baron de Dudley.

10. Ralph de Someri, Baron Dudley (eldest son), married Lady Margaret. He died 1210.

*11. William Percival de Someri, Baron of Dudley (eldest son), died in 1221.

12. Roger de Someri (second son, a brother of Nicholas, the oldest son and Baron of Dudley, who died without heir). He married (second) Lady Annabl, daughter of Robert de Chaucumbe.

13. Roger de Someri, Baron of Dudley, married Agnes ..... He died 1290

14. Margaret de Someri, Baroness of Dudley. She inherited from her brothers, who died without children, Dudley castle the manor of Seggesley, the town of Dudley, etc. She married John de Sutton, Baron of Dudley by right of his wife. He was a son of Richard, Baron de Sutton, son of Hugh de Sutton, and his wife, Elizabeth, a daughter of William Patrick, Lord of Malpas, Chester.

15. John de Sutton, second Baron of Dudley, married as her first husband Lady Isabella, daughter of John de Charlton, Lord of Powys (No. 121 generations from Adam. See Chapter I, April, 1924.) He died 1359.

16. (122). John de Sutton, third Baron of Dudley, married Lady Joan Clinton. He died 1376.

17. (123-. John de Sutton, fourth Baron of Dudley, who married Constance Blount. He died in 1407.

18. (124-. Sir John de Sutton, K. G., fifth Baron of Dudley by tenure and by writ in 1424 first Lord Dudley, who carried the royal standard at the funeral of King Henry V and was lieutenant of Ireland and treasurer to King Henry VI. He married Lady Elizabeth, daughter of John Berkeley of Bevaston ,and widow of Edward Charlton, Lord of Powys.

19. (125- Edmund Sutton de Dudley, eldest son (brother of John de Dudley who was the father of Edmund Dudley who was beheaded by Henry VIII, whose son was Sir John Dudley, K. G., Viscount L'Isle, Earl of Warwick and Duke of Northumberland, who was beheaded in 1553). He married first Lady Joice, sister of John de Tibelot, Earl of Worcester, and had John, second Lord Dudley. He married second Lady Maud, daughter of Thomas, eighth Lord Clifford and widow of Sir Thomas Harrington and had by his last wife.

20. (126). Thomas Dudley, a dry goods merchant in London. He died (will dated Oct. 18, 1549) and is buried at St. Michael's church, Cornhill, London. He had married Margaret, a daughter of Launcelot Threlkeld of Garworth or Melmerby Hall, Cumberland. She died in 1551. Their son

21. (127). John Dudley, merchant (will dated July 29, 1546), and buried at St. Michael's, Cornhill. He married Elizabeth, daughter of John Clarke of London ,a merchant. He had a son, Edward, whose will, dated in 1542, names his younger brother, Roger, his sole executor.

22. (128). Captain Roger Dudley of Canon's Ashby, in Green's Norton Hundred, Northamptonshire, a soldier in the civil wars. He married Susannah Thorne. He lost his life in the wars about 1586 at age of 64.

23. (129). Governor Thomas Dudley of Massachusetts Bay Colony. He was born in Canon's Ashby about 1576. Commanded a company of Northamptonshire men at the siege of Amiens, France. He was steward for Earl of Lincoln until 1630. Through the earnest teachings of his Christian mother he became a Puritan and came to America. His first wife was Dorothy Yorke. She died in 1643 and he married second Catherine Hackburn. By his first wife he had among others a daughter, Anne.

24. (130). Anne Dudley, who married Governor Simon Bradstreet, and they came to America with her father and mother. She died 1672.

25. (131). Anne Bradstreet married Andrew Wiggin.

26. (132). Jonathan Wiggin married Mary Emery.

27. (133). Anne Wiggin married Joseph Jewett.

28. (134). Anne or Hannah) Jewett married her cousin, John Jewett.

29. (135). Joseph Jewett married Huldah Fenton.

30. (136). David Lewis Jewett married Marie Bostedo.

31. (137). George Enoch Jewett married Patty Maria Matthews.

32. (138). Geo. A. Jewett married Annie Henry.

I have now given you several different Dudley lines through his father, his mother and his wife Dorothy

Yorke, so if you are descendants of Thomas Dudley you can easily connect with this line back to Adam.

CHAPTER XIII
The Robert Bruce Line Through Aaron Crawford Our Emigrant Ancestor

As one historian put it, when man awoke from a long dream of consciousness, and looked around him in amazement, he readily snatched at anything and believed most anything that would explain things Thus early histories of many nations are legends. It is claimed that the Scots came from Ireland and Fergus was the first king of Scotland some 500 years before Christ, while Robert Bruce, king of Scotland, was born in A. D. 1274, or nearly 1800 years after Fergus, the first king.

One will better understand the Scotland of the days of Robert Bruce if he will study ancient Scottish history.

Julius Caesar visited what we know as England about B. C. 45, but it was as late as A. D. 43, nearly 100 years before the conquest was really begun. In A. D. 78 Agricola was appointed chief of the Roman forces and he advanced to the border counties of Scotland and in A. D. 80 he went as far as the Firths of Forth and Clyde. In the 8th century the Picts were the chief power in Scotland, but they were a number of Celtic tribes combined for defense of their country.

In 839 the Danes invaded the territory of the Picts and defeated them. Then Kenneth McAlpin obtained a small kingdom of the Scots. This was in 844, when he mounted the throne of the Picts at Scone.

To see just where you are, remember that Charlemagne had been crowned emperor of the west in Rone in 800. Egbert was king of Wessex, Englhd 802 and became the first king of England; Whitekind, the last king of the Saxons, had been conquered by Charlemagne and paid homage to him in 785. Alfred the Great was born in 849; William the Conqueror came in 1066; Saint Louis was born in 1215.

It is well known that the Bruce family gave Scotland its last and greatest dynasty and ever since has transmitted its Scottish blood to the ruling families of Great Britain. Orignially of Scandinavian origin the line is traced through the nobles of Sweden, Norway and Denmark as well as the ruling families of Russia and Germany. They were the vikings of the north and played their part when they and their countrymen were masters of the sea. Some sailed over to the Orkney and Shetland islands, while another (No. 5 below) was Rollo, the first Duke of Normandy; thus the Bruces were allied with the Dukes of Normandy and in later generations with Willam the Conqueror. The direct male line is traceable to Sveide, a viking who lived in 760-800. On his mother's side it is traceable through male and female lines to the founders of several kingdoms which finally became Norway. It traces to Odin, a prince of the fourth century, who was driven from his domain on the borders of the North sea by the Romans.

1. Sveide of Upland, a viking of 760-800, in Norway.

2. Halfden the Aged, a ruler of Upland in 800.

3. Ivar, Earl of Upland 830. He boasted that he was descended from Thor. In 850 he married a daughter of Eystein Glumra, who was King of Frondheim in 840.

Kenneth McAlpin came to the throne of Scotland in 836 and united the Scots and Picts.

4. Eystein (or Eustín) called Glumra of Vors, fled from Norway about 870 to escape Danish tyranny. He married (first) Jocunda, daughter of Hunthiof, King of North Mere and South Mere, two provinces of Norway. Second, Ascrida, daughter of Rognvald, son of Olaf, a king of Norway. (He had a son Sigurd who became first Earl of Orkney. He had much truble with his Scottish neighbors. In 838 he invaded Ireland and captured Dublin.)

5. Rognvald, son of Eystein by his second wife Ascrida,. He was one of the great men of the Northland. He was independent king of an important part of Norway. He was of the same family as Harald Harfagra and of same rahk as that earl and he assisted Harald until he was on the throne, as first King of Norway, and Harald appointed him as Earl of North Mere and Raumsdale in 885 and later as Earl of South Mere. He had a son Ivar who went with Harald to Scotland and was killed in 870. On account of the loss of his son Harald made him governor of the Orkneys and Shetland islands, but Rognvald met his death in

He had marred twice; first, Hilda, daughter of Rolf, Baron of Raumsdale, and second, Groa, daughter of Wrymund, King of Frondheim. He had three sons by his first wife; first, Rolo, who led an army across the seas to France and founded there the kingdom of Normandy. Second, Thorir, surnamed the Silent, who after the death of his father was made by Harald Earl of Mere, and he married in 885 Alof Arbot, ing arald's daughter, Halladur, who became third Earl of Orkney. He had three sons and one daughter by his second wife Groa.

6. Einar, son of Rognvald and his wife Groa, was fourth Earl of Orkney. His father gave him a long boat and some men and they sailed away for Orkney islands . Here he found two other ships of vikings. He fought them and conquered. He was a powerful man. He ruled the people so well that they were all devoted to him. He discovred a body of peat an dtaught the people to burn it as fuel.

7. Thorfin Hausklifr, the head cleaver, was the fifth Earl of Orkney and Earl of Shetland in 942. He died 963. He married Grelad or Greloba, a daughter of Dungar, Earl of Cathanes, whose wife was Gron, a daughter of Thorstein Randa, the Red, a son of Olaf Hviti, the White, by his wife, Aud, the "Deeply Wealthy." It is quite a story by the Sagas of Iceland. The house to which Groa belonged was one of the most powerful in the islands of the north.

8. Hlodver was the sixth Earl of Orkney. He married Audna, daughter of Kiarval, King of Ireland (Cearbhal or Carrol of the Irish Anals). He had one son Sigurd and a daughter Gerleota, who arried Baldwin Clapham, son of Edmund, King of England. He died 980 and was buried at Hofu in Cathanes.

9. Sigurd was seventh Earl of Orkney. He held Cathnes against Kennith III of Scotland. Btween 969 and 995 he was challenged by the Earl of Finnleic, the father of Macbeth, whom he defeated. Soon after 995 he embraced Christianity under threat of King Olaf Tryggvision of Norway, who had seized his son Hundi and threatened to kill him. About 1014 he went to Ireland, leaving his elder son to reign over his dominions and leaving his younger son Thorfinn to the care of his grandfather, King Malcolm. Engaged in war with the Irish king, Brian Boroimhe (Boru), he was killed in the battle of Clontarf, April 23, 1014. This battle was near Dublin. He had married (second) Olith, Alice or Thora, daughter of Malcolm II, King of Scotland. He had one daughter, Elean, who marred Duncan, son of Malcolm II of Scotland.

10. Brusi or Brusee. When his faher Sigurd died his four sons, Sumerlid, Brusi, Einar and Thorfin, contended for a division of his kingdom and Thorfinn, the youngest, was supported by his grandfather, King Malcolm of Scotland. In order to keep peace he granted a part of Orkney to Thorfinn. He ruled over the balance of Orkney to the great satisfaction of hi speople. Brusi was converted to Christianity in the eleventh century. He died in 1031.

He had married Ostriad, a daughter of Rogenwald Wolfson, Earl of Gothland.

11. Rognvald was early in life held in hostage at the court of King Olaf, the Holy, of Norway. When the king was compelled to flee from Norway he accompanied him. He was made governor of the castle of Olde-gorburg in Russia by Duke Waldamar. He contended with his uncle Thorfinn for Orkney, but was eventually put to death by Thorfinn.

He had married first Arlogia, daughter of the Duke of Waldamar, and second Felicia, a daughter of William the Conqueror. Children by first wife.

12. Brusi or Robert de Brusse. He did not care for Orkney, but went to Norway, the home of his ancestors, and attached himself to the house of his mother's people. He became powerful in court, being councillor for Robert I, Duke of Normandy, the father of William the Conqueror. He built the castle of la Brusee or Bruis, now Brix, in Normandy, which became the cradle of the royal house of Scotland. Brusee castle or the Chateau d' Adam, near Valognes, in the diocese of Constance, was situated on the side of the hill on the top of which was the village of Brusis and below was the river Douve. Some ruins of the castle are to be seen to this day.

I have looked at these ruins on one week-end trip out of Paris and will look at them with more interest next time, as I know they were built by an ancestor of mine.

He married Emma, daughter of Alain, Earl of Brittany. His oldest son, Alain de la Brusee, married Agnes Montfort, daughter of Earl of Eureux, and was Lord of Brusee castle and became head of the great Normandy family bearing his name.

13. Robert De Brusee (second of the name) followed the standard o William, Duke of Normandy, who conquered England in 1066. He had a command of 200 men. He was a man of distinguished character and was held in high esteem by William and shared generously in his favors, receiving many estates. Some authorities say he possessed forty-three manors in the east and west ridings of Yorkshire and fifty-one in the north riding.

He married Agnes, a daughter of Walderne, Earl of St. Clair. Walderne of Santo Claro came from Normandy with William the Conqueror. His son, William St. Clair, settled in Scotland in the reign of David I and received the barony of Roslin in Midlothian. Robert de Brusse died in 1094.

14. Adelme or Adam de Brusee came to England in 1050 in attendance upon Emma of Normandy, who was a daughter of Richard I of Normandy by his wife Gonnor and became Queen of Ethelred, King of England. After the death of Queen Emma he went to Scotland, attracted there on account of family connection When William the Conqueror came to England he joined the army of the invader and after the conquest he was made Baron of Skelton and Lord of Cleveland for his services. Skelton manor was the chief one in Yorkshire and became the seat of the English branch of the family.

Adam de Brusee died in the fourteenth year f the reign of William I in 1680. He had married Emma, daughter of Sir William Ramsey.

15. Robert de Brusee, the third of that name, was born 1078 and was head of the barony of Bruce and first Baron of Skelton and Annandale. He assisted Edgar, son of Malcolm Canmore, against Duncan.

At the suggestion of Pope Honorius II he gave the church of Middleburgh and some lands to the monks of Whitby to establish a cell of the Abbey of Guisburn in Cleveland. His brother, William de Brusse, was made the first prior of the abbey. He endowed the hospital of Jerusalem.

His early years were passed at the court of King Henry I of England. David of Scotland was there at the same time and a close friendship sprang up between them.

He married first Agnes Pagnel, daughter of Fulk Pagnel; second, Agnes of Annandale. By his first wife he acquired the lands of Carleton and Camelford, and Hart and Hartness in Durham.

When his friend David came to the throne of Scotland he granted him by charter the land of Annandale. During the trouble between Maud, the empress, and King Stephen these friends parted company. King David I supported the cause of Maud, his niece, while Robert de Brusee took the side of Stephen, King of England. In the celebrated battle of the Standard on August 22, 1138, Robert de Brusee was a conspicuous figure.

He died in 1141 and was buried in Guisburn priory.

16. Robert de Brusee, fourth of that name, son of the former by his wife Annandale, was second Baron of Annandale. Residing in Scotland he was a follower of David, King of Scotland, an dwas the head of the Scottish branch of the Bruce family During the battle of the Standard he was taken prisoner by his own father and sent to London and was pardoned by King Henry I and sent back to Annandale.

He married, first, Judith, daughter of William de Lancaster, Lord of Kendale, and succeeded to the Lordship of Kendale. He married, second, Euphemia ..... He died between 1189 and 1191. He had two sons by Euphemia, Robert de Brusee, who married in 1183, Isabella, daughter of William the Lion, King of Scotland, but died without children.

17. William de Brusee was third Baron of Annandale. He died 1215. He married Judith, daughter of William de Lancaster.

18. Robert de Brusee or Robert Bruce, sixth of that name, was fourth Baron of Annandale and was a great person of his day Among the most powerful barons when King Alexander II went to York in 1221, he was one of the barons who accompanied him and was witness to the endowment Alexander bestowed on his wife Joanna, sister of King Henry III of England.

He married Isabel, daughter of David, Earl of Huntingdon and Maude of Chester. We now have joined the story of 136 generations from Adam in Isabel, No. 113, in Chapter X, and the second number before the name after this will be generations from Adam.

David was the son of Prince Henry of Scotland and grandson of David I of Scotland. By this marriage was the real royal blood of Scotland introduced into the Bruce family and through this marriage the descendants of Robert Bruce lay clam to the throne . Through this marriage he also became one of the wealthiest and most powerful nobles of England and Scotland. She brought him the manor of Whittle and Hatfield in Essex, also the castle of Kildrummie, the lordship of Garioch in Aberdeenshire and the manors of Conniington in Huntingdonshire and Exton in Rutlandshire.

He died ih 1245 and his wife died in 1252. Both are buried in the Abbey of Saltre near Stilton in Huntingdonshire . Stukely, the antiquarian, visited the place . He wrote: "When I saw the ruins f the church in which lay the bones of Robert Bruce and his wife Isabel, the progenitors of kings," etc.

19 (114). Robert Bruce, seventh of the name, was born in 1210. He claimed the crown of Scotland against John Baliol. On the death of his father he became Lord Annandale. and on the death of his mother in 1251 he came into possession of her share of the earldom of Huntingdon. Thus he was powerful both in Scotland and England.

In 1250 he was justice in the court of common pleas of Henry III of England. On the death of Alexander II of Scotland he was named as one of the regents during the minority of Alexander III. He was made sheriff of Cumberland and governor of Carlisle by Henry III. During 1257 to 1271 he frequently sat on the English bench and in 1268 was the first chief justice of England. He sat in parliament and during the barons' war was one of the supporters of the king. Marched with the king from Oxford to Northallerton. In the battle of Lewes, May 14, 1264, he was taken prisoner, but was released in 1265.

During his lifetime he began the great struggle for the throne of Scot land which terminated after a quarter of a century in seating his famous grandson on the throne.

He was in the convention at Scone in February, 1283-4, which recognized Margaret the Maid of Norway, but on the death of Alexander III in 1286 he formed a powerful leagues of nobles who pledged themselves to allow the claim of any one who should gain the kingdom by right of blood, and in the civil war which followed he asserted his title to the crown against his cousin, John Baliol. Neither was able unaided to attain the crown and they agreed to leave it to Edward I of England. He offered to decide in favor of Robert Bruce if he would do homage to him but he would not, saying he preferred the honor of his country to his own personal advantage. Edward then gave it to Baliol on the same conditions, which he accepted. Bruce refused to do homage to Baliol, but resigned to his son Annandale, Earl of Carrick. He retired to his castle of Luchmaben, where he died on Good Friday, 1295.

Robert Bruce married first, in 1240, Isabel de Clare, daughter of Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Gloucester and Hereford. She was born in 1226 and only 13 years of age when she married. She died in 1271. She was sixth generation from William the Conqueror through his wife Matilda.

20 (115). Robert Bruce, eighth of the name, was first Earl of Carrick. He was born in 1253. When but a youth of sixteen years in 1269 he went to the Holy Land as a Crusader, a companion of Edward, Prince of England, afterwards Edward I of England. After the death of his father in 1295 he succeeded to the lordship of Annandale and was appointed governor of Carlisle, he and his son, Earl of Carrick, taking oath of fidelity to Edward I of England and Scotland.

Edward restored to him his lands in Scotland. He sat in parliament in 1295-1297. He joined Edward in his expedition against Scotland, and when Baliol was overthrown at Dunbar in 1296, Bruce claimed the throne of Scotland by virtue of a promise which he claimed Edward had made him. Edward denied, so Bruce retired to his estate and took no more part in the politics of the day. He died in the Holy Land in 1304 and is buried in Abbey of Holmcultram, Cumberland.

He married, in 1271, Marjory, widow of Adam de Kilconcath, who fell in the Holy Land in 1270. She was the only daughter of Neil, Earl of Carrick. She died in 1292. They had five sons and seven daughters, the oldest of which—

21 (116). Robert Brusee, King of Scotland, ninth of that name, was born July 11, 1274. He spent his youth at the court of Edward I, King of England. Upon the death of his mother in 1292, his father resigned to him the title of Earl of Carrick. He took the part of Edward I during his battle with Scotland, but later at times was first on one side and then the other, but when Edward showed he intended to make Scotland entirely subject to himself, Bruce took the part of Scotland. This was in 1298.

He addressed his fellow countrymen of Scotland, recanting his oath to Edward, and asked them to rally to his standard in support of Scotland. In 1300 he again was in Edward's ranks and for five years served him faithfully.

Robert Bruce Line Through Aaron Crawford—Continued

In 1305-6 Baliol renounced any claim to the throne and this left John Comyn, the Red, the next in line for the throne.

1. Bruce and Comyn entered Gray Friars convent at Dumfries for a private talk. Bruce referred to the miserable condition of Scotland; once an independent kingdom, now only a province of England.

He proposed to Comyn that he (Bruce) would take Comyn's lands and he would help Comyn to be king, or if he preferred, Comyn could take Bruce's lands and Bruce would help Comyn to be king. The longer they talked the more bitter they got and Bruce drew a dagger and stabbed Comyn and then ran out of the convent and his friends asked if anything was amiss. He replied: "I doubt. I have slain Comyn." Instantly Kirkpatrick, one of his followers, ran into the convent and completed the job. He also killed Comyn's uncle, Sir Robert Comyn.

So now the die was cast and Bruce had no competition for the throne. In March, 1305-6, he was crowned King of Scotland at Scone. For eight years there was much warfare. He was excommunicated in St. Paul's cathedral. Three of his brothers and several friends were hanged, but he fought on. On the death of King Edward in July, 1307, Bruce swept through Scotland and cleared it of the English. By 1313 all the English fortresses in Scotland were taken except the castle of Sterling, and at the battle of Bannockburn, June 24, 1314, the English army was defeated. March 4, 1328, Bruce was recognized as King of Scotland. He did not live long to enjoy his triumph. He died June 7, 1329.

On his deathbed he desired that his heart be taken to the Holy Land and then brought back and buried in the church of Melrose Abbey, and appointed Sir James of Douglas to carry out his wishes.

Robert Bruce was married first to Isabel of Mar, daughter of Donald, tenth Earl of Mar; second, to Elizabeth Aylmer, daughter of Richard de Burgh, second Earl of Ulster. He had nine children:

1. Marjory Bruce, who married Walter, high steward of Scotland, Earl of Renfrew, and became the ancestors of the royal house of Stewart of Scotland and England.

2. David Bruce, born 1324, and became David II of Scotland on the death of his father, King Robert Bruce.

22 (117). Marjory Bruce, daughter of King Robert Bruce, married Walter high steward of Scotland, Earl of Renfrew, and through this comes the royal house of Stuart of England and Scotland.

23 (118). Robert Bruce II, 1370 to 1390, married Elizebeth Mure, a daughter of Sir Adam Mure.

24 (119). Robert Bruce III, King of Scotland 1390 to 1406, married Annebel Drummond.

25 (120). Mary married Sir James Kennedy, son of Gilbert Kennedy.

26 (121). Gilbert Kennedy married Catherine Maxwell.

27 (122). Catherine married Alexander, second Lord Montgomery.

28 (123). Huge, third Lord Montgomery, married Lady Helen Campbell.

29 (124). Lady Margaret married Sir William Semphill.

30 (125). Thomas Semphill married June 11, 1458, Elizebeth Ross.

31 (126). Margaret Semphill married Robert Crawford of Kilberni, Scotland (see No. 14 (123) of the Crawford line. By this it will be seen Margaret Semphill was the 126th generation from Adam by the Robert Bruce line and Robert Crawford was the 123rd generation from Adam Adam by the way of the Crawford line and Matilda of Scotland.

The Crawford Line

In order to show the royal connection I will commence this with William the Conqueror. We could bring the Bruce line down through William the Conqueror and on to the Crawfords, as you will note from the beginning of this chapter.

1. William, Duke of Normandy (see No. 6n, Chapter VII), married Matilda (Maude). He was born in 1025, died Sept. 9, 1087.

2. Henry I of England, 1068-1135, (see 7n), married Matilda of Scotland (No. 110). He was born in Selby, Yorkshire.

3. Matilda (No. 111) married Allan fourth Earl of Richmond.

5. Reginald de Richmond, (third son) No. 113. He went to Scotland.

6. Johannes (No. 114).

7. Galfridas (No. 115).

8. Sir Reginald de Crawford (No. 116), sheriff of Ayer. He married about 1200 Margaret, a daughter of James de Lowdown, who received charter of the baronies of Lowdown, County Ayr (afterwards was given title of earl) and he became first vice council of the county.

9 (121). Roger de Crawford.

10 (122). John Crawford.

11 123). Malcom Crawford married Margery Barclay.

12 (124). Malcom Crawford married Marion Crichton in 1499.

13 (125). John Crawford.

14. (123). Robert Crawford married Margaret, daughter of Thos. Semphill of Elliston. (See No. 31 (126) of the Robert Bruce line.) In this way the Crawford line and Bruce line are connected.

We will now resume the Robert Bruce line as it is connected with the Crawford line and use numbere of the Bruce line.

32 (127). Lawrence Crawford of Kilbirne. He married Hellen, daughter of Sir Hugh Campbell of Lowdown (Crawford castle). Kilbernie is 25 miles from Glasgow.

33 (128). Hugh Crawford married Margaret, daughter of John Colquhon. He was a firm defender of Queen Mary.

34 (129). Malcomb Crawford of Kilbirni. He married Margaret Cunningham.

35 (130). Alexander Crawford. He married a Miss Crichton. He went to Ireland and settled in Cappy, County Tyrone.

The Chrichton family were prominent in Scotland. Sir William Crichton was Governor of the castle of Edinburg in 1437.

36 (131). John Crawford.

37 (132). John crawford.

38 (133). Aaron Crawford was born in the parish of Cappy, County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1677. He married Agnes Wilson, who was born in Ireland, 1678; married about 1704. They came to America with four of their children who were born in Ireland, as follows, Samuel, born in 1705; Martha, born in 1706; John, born in 1708; Alexandria; born in 1710. They settled in Rutland, Mass., 1719, where three more children were born: Isabelle, Moses and Mary. He took a very prominent part in activities of this settlement. He died in Rutland, 1754. She died in Rutland, Dec. 10, 1760. A stone marks their grave, in memory of Mrs. Agnes Crawford, wife of Aaron Crawford, who departed this life Dec. 10, 1760, age 82 years. In memory of Aaron Crawford, who died Aug. 6, 1754, age 76 years. Aaron Crawford and his wife, Agnes Wilson Crawford, brought letters of dismissal from the church in Ardstraw, County of Tyrone, Ireland.

39 (134). Martha Crawford, born in Ireland, 1706, came to America with her parents in 1713, settling in Rutland, Mass., 1719. She married James Bell, May 24, 1733. James Bell was born in Ballygawley in County Tyrone, Ireland, 1705. He was decended from James Bell of Scotland, who was in the house of parliament, 1597-1628. His father had come from Scotland to Ireland. It is my purpose in a future article to connect his line with the main story.

When he first came to America they settled Londonary and then in 1749, with nine other Ccotch-Irish families, came to West Wing Oakham, Mass., and commenced a settlement. May 24, 1733, he married Martha Crawford. He took an active part in the early struggle of the colony. Was an ensign in Col. Bothwell's Compeny, Col. Ruggles Regiment, which marched from Rutland, Aug. 9, 1757, and went to the relief of Fort Henry. In 1764 he and Alexander Crawford, his brother-in-law, were assessors. April 19, 1775, he marched as corporal on the Lexington Alarm. This was his sole service in the war of the Revolution. He died March 5, 1793. Their tombstones are to be seen in Oakham churchyard.

40 (135). John Bell was born in Oakham, Mass., 1734. On April 19, 1775, he was on the Lexington Alarm from Brookfield, Mass. (See Brookfield Records, page 228.) He also did other service during the Revolution.

He married Hannah White, January 27, 1776. They were married in Warren, Mass.

The Bells and Crawfords assisted in organizing a church in Oakham in 1776. James Bell was chosen warden.

John Bell and his wife, Hannah White Bell, removed to Chester Center, Mass. Here they were members of the old Chester church. Their children were born in Oakham. Patty, born 1776, died 1778; Reuben, born 1779; Patty, born 1784. John Bell died in Chester, Mass, March 4, 1808. His widow, Hannah, removed to Ashtabula county, Ohio, where she died in Windsor in the year 1847. At this writing we have not determined, the ancestors of Hannah White.

41 (136). Patty Bell was born in Oakham, Mass.; married March 7, 1805, in Warren, Mass., to Osee Matthews. They both came into the church at Chester, March 29, 1807. They spent the first eight years of their married life in Chester, Hadley and Worcester, and then moved to near Troy, N. Y. In 1817, removed with their family to Ohio, settled near the foot of Little Mountain, near Painesville, Ohio, in the Western Reserve. They became members of the Christian church of Mentor. They were of the influential families of the Reserve. In 1837 they removed to White Pigeon Prairie, Indiana, and in 1838 to Iowa, settling in Henry county, then in Jefferson county. They had a large family of children: Diantha, born May 13, 1806; Caroline, born November 15, 1807; Corinth, born November 12, 1809; Reuben, born in 1811. The above born in Chester, Mass. Osee, Jr., born July 4, 1813, and Warren, July 7, 1816, near Troy, N. Y. In Lake county, Ohio, Patty Maria, born June 29, 1818; Simpson Bell, born August 1, 1821; Homer L., born April 19, 1823; Oscar, born August 18, 1827.

While living in Henry county, Iowa, near Mount Pleasant, Iowa, she writes a letter to her oldest daughter, Caroline, and her husband, George Reynolds, who as yet remained back in Ohio near Painesville, but who came to Marion county, Iowa, some four years later with their children, Lucien, Osee ,Anson, Edgar and Caroline. (Anson was well known in Des Moines, a member of University church; he died some three years ago.

This letter has been sent to me that I might see it by Fannie Painter of Sheridan, Wyo., a daughter of Caroline Reynolds-Painter (just named above) and a granddaughter of Caroline Matthews-Reynolds, to whom the letter was written, and a great granddaughter of Patty Bell-Matthews, who wrote the letter.

The letter was written before the days of stamps or envelopes by my grandmother, who was born amid the rugged hills at Oakham, near Rutland, Mass., and after marriage to my grandfather, Osee Matthews, lived at Chester Center amid the Berkshire hills, western Massachusetts. Then in the beautiful valley of the Hudson river, near Troy, N. Y. Then another removal to the Western or Connecticut Reserve in that beautiful country near Painesville, O., at the foot of the "Little Mountain." Here my "Little Mother" was born and on a nearby farm, on what is now known as the Garfield farm, my father was born, and when my mother was eighteen years of age they moved on and after a year in northern Indiana, near La Porte, they had piled their household goods in the covered wagons and pushed on, crossing the Mississippi river near Burlington, only to find their claims "jumped"—claims my grandfather and his sons had located the year before and on which they had built their cabins. But how cheerfully and philosophically she takes another westward move into the land of the Sac and Fox Indians.

My grandmother was born in 1784 and was 55 years old when she wrote this letter. She died in 1852 in Red Rock, Iowa, her long journey of pioneer days was ended.

The letter was folded and sealed with wax. It was postmarked in writing, Mt. Pleasant, I. T. (Iowa Territory), April 8, 1839. The figures at the names will tell who they are. (See bottom of letter.)

CHAPTR XIII

A reader of this story says Henri Quatre (Henry IV of France) was always one of his historical heroes on account of his having issued the Edict of Nantes granting religious rights to Protestants. He says perhaps it is because he has some Huguenot blood in him. He asks if we can trace to Henry IV.

I do not believe I can, but if you have some Huguenot blood in you perhaps you can.

Here is the line showing how we are related to Henri Quatre and also to Louis le Grand.

Henry IV of France was a descendant of Saint Louis, whom I have shown you is one of our ancestors. He was born in Pau in 1553, a son of Antony of Bourbon, King of Navarre, and Jeanne Albert. He was a distant cousin of Henry III of France, whom he later succeeded. He married in 1571 Mararet of Valois, who was a daughter of Catherine de Medicis.

Catherine de Medicis (1519-1589) was one of the most noted of this family. She is sometimes called Bloody Catherine. She was the daughter of Laurent de Medicis, born in Florence Italy. She married Henry II of France and was the mother of Francis II, of Charles IX and of Henry III. She was regent of France during the minority of Charles IX. she was without scruples. She brought about the massacre of the Huguenots on St. Bartholomew's day; even planned to have her son-in-law, Henry IV assassinated.

The line of Henry IV of France from St. Louis is as follows:

1. Louis IX (Saint Louis) was born in Poissy in 1215. He was king of France, 1226-1270. He married Marguerite of Provence in 1234. It will be remembered his mother was Blanche of Castile and his father was Louis VIII of France.

He was a crusader in 1248 was taken prisoner regained his liberty and returned to France in 1252 on hearing of the death of his mother Blanche of Castile. He did much for France; created a commission which was the beginning of a house of parliament. He built that beautiful church Saint Chappell, situated on the islands of Paris, the most beautiful church of Paris. He founded the University of Sarbonne in 1226. Then he founded the hospital Quinze Vingt in 1260 for the blind.

In 1270 he he undertook the last crusade.

2. Phillip III (The Bold), 1270-85) Son of Saint Louis and Marguerite of Provence was king of France. Born in 1245. Married Marie, daughter of Henry, duke of Brahant.

3. Phillip IV (The Fair) 1268 1314) Son of Phillip 3rd and Isabella of Aragon. Born at Fontainebleau in 1268. This beautiful palace was built by Francis 1st.

I have visited it several times and read while there its wonderful history. It is near here in the woods of Fontainebleau was the home of Rosa Bonheur, the celebrated French painter especially of animals. You all have seen copies of her Horse Market, her masterpiece. I have visited the place and saw some of the horses, but she had died the year before.

He was King of France 1285-1314; married Jeanne, Queen of Navarre.

4. Louis X, 1289-1316. King of France 1314-1316. He married Marguerite de Bourgogne.

5. Jeanne, daughter of Louis X, was given the kingdom of Navarre by Phillip VI. She married Phillip of Evereux.

6. Charles the Bad (Charles, king of Navarre 1348), 1332-1387. Married Johanna, a daughter of John II of France.

7. Blanche, daughter of Charles, king of Navarre. Married John I king of Aragon and Navarre 1387-1395.

8. Eleanora Queen of Navarre 1479, She married Gaston de Foix.

9. Catherine de Foix. Married Jean d Albrecht, 1489, and he became king of Navarre. He was from an old Gascon family dating back to 1030.

10. Henry II became duke of Albret, 1550, and king of Navarre. He married Margaret, a sister of Francis I of France. She was a daughter of Charles, duke of Orleans.

11. Jeanne d'Albret (1528-1572) She was Queen of Navarre; was a remarkable woman. She became a strong believer in Calvinism and forwarded the cause of Protestantism very much. She brought a band of Huguenots to Coligny and after the death of Conde was the head of Protestantism. She married Antoine of Bourbon. By this it will be seen Henry IV was a descendant of the two illustrious houses of Orleans and Bourbon.

12. Henry IV of France (Henry III of Navarre). He was born in Pau 1553. He was a Protestant (A Hugenot). He became engaged to Margaret, daughter of Catherine de Medicis, in 1572.

The Medicis family were a very early Florence, Italy family, back about 1150. They were bankers and gathered a large fortune. Had sovereigns for customers. Popes Leo X and Clement VII were of this family.. They were great patrons of fine arts. Henry was called to Paris at the instigation of Catherine de Medicis and married Margaret de Medicis just before St Bartholomew Day, Aug. 24, 1572, the day when the Hugenots were massacred in large numbers and just escaped.

Alexander Dumas, the great French writer, has written a great historical story, "La Reine Margot" (Queen Margaret), founded on Henry IV and his queen, Margaret. It has been my pleasure to read this story in the French sitting in the gardens at Paris odjoining the Louvre, and the incidents took place in the Louvre, then the palace of Charles IX, and the wedding was at Notre Dame de Paris. And as I would read Dumas' description I would look up the Louvre and as the bells of St. Germain l'Auxerrois across the street to the east ring out I would remember that these same bells gave the signal for the bloody massacre of the Huguenots.

In 1598 Henry IV promulgated the famous Edict of Nantes granting special rights and privleges to Protestants. This interested me so much that I went down to the old city of Nantes on the river Loir near its mouth. This Edict of Nantes was revoked by Louis XIV in 1685, which caused many Hougenots to leave France , many going to Holland and England and eventually many came to America.

Henry divorced Margaret of Valois and married Marie de Medicis. She was of this same Florence family, born in Florence. After the death of Henry she was regent during the minority of Louis XIII. She died in Cologne, 1642. She was a great patron of art. Brought Reubens to Paris to paint the life of Henry IV and these celebrated works of art are in the Louvre art gallery, twenty-one paintings, but as I have often said when studying them, they are more the life of Marie de Medicis than that of Henry IV.

13. Louis XIII was born at Fontainebleu, September, 1601. King of France, 1610-1643. Cardinal Richelieu was his prime minister, who founded the Acadamie Francaise. Built the splendid palace opposite the Louvre which he called Palais Cardinal but on his death bed gave it to the king, when it became known as Palais Royal, as many of you know it today. Louis died at Saint Germain in 1643. He had married Anne of Austria.

14. Louis XIV, known as Louis le Grand. The grand monarch was born at Saint Germain en Laye in 1638. King of France, 1643-1715.

If you will refer to Februarr, 1930, issue you will see our own line from Saint Louis. He was 9f, and Henry IV is No. 12 from Saint Louis; so if our French line was continued to Henry ho would be No. 21 or a twentieth cousin of Joan de' Arcy, who married Sir Richard Yorke, and Louis the Great would be twenty-second cousin twice removed to Dorothy Yorke, who married Thomas Dudley and came to America.

William the Conqueror

THE LINE OF GOV. THOMAS DUDLEY

Yes, Gov. Thomas Dudley and his many descendants are descended from Isabel de Vermandoise, as are Washington and Lincoln. It can be brought down through the lines as printed from Charlemagne, Whitekinde, Alfred the Great, Hugh Capret etc. to Lady Isabell de Vermandoise through her second marriage to Wm. De Warren second Earl of Surrey. Their daughter Ada Warren married Henry, Earl of Huntingdon who was a son of King David of Scotland. You will note that Dudley's line comes through Isabel de Vermandoise's daughter, Ada, while Lincoln's is through her daughter. Isabel de Warren. (King David was the 110 generation from Adam so his son Henry who married Ada de Warren would be the 111th generation from Adam.

112. David Earl of Huntingdon married Maude of Chester.

113. Margaret of Huntingdon married Allan of Galloway. He was a crusader. He died 1234.

114. Hellen of Golloway married de Quincy, Earl of Winchester. He was a crusader.

115. Hellen (Elena de Quincey) married Allan la Zouche, 4th Baron la Zouche of Ashby.

116. Eudo la Zouche, who married Millicent Cantiloupe.

117. Ellen la Zouche who married John Harcourt. He died in 1330.

118. William Harcourt who married Jane Grey. He died in 1340.

119. Thomas Harcourt who married Maude, daughter of Lord John Grey of Rotherfield.

120. Thomas Harcourt married Jane Franceys, died 1420.

121. Richard Harcourt who married Edith St. Clair, a daughter of Thomas St. Clair. Died in 1486.

122. Alice Harcourt who married William Bessiles..

123. Elizabeth Bessiles, who married Richard Pettiplace.

124. Anne Pettiplace who married Edward Purefoy.

125. Mary Purefoy who married Thomas Thorne.

126. Susannah Thorne who married Capt. Roger Dudley. Their son, Thomas Dudley, was baptized Oct. 12, 1576, as recorded in the parish register in Yarley near Narthampton, England. "Thomas, son of Roger and Susanne (Thorne) Dudley."

127. Governor Thomas Dudley one of the founders of Massachusetts Bay Colony who came with his wife Dorothy Yorke Dudley (also of royal desent) who came on the Arabella in 1630.

128. Anne Dudley born 1612 in England; married 1628 Gov. Simon Bradstreet in England and came with him and her father and mother in 1630 on the Arabella. She was the first American poetess.

129. Anne Bradstreet married Andrew Wiggin, a son of Gov. Thomas Wiggin, of New Hampshire.

130. Jonathan Wiggin married Mary Emery, died 1738.

131. Anne Wiggin married Ensign Joseph Jewett, born 1701.

I was going to end this with another president, but concluded to show the descendants of Governors Thomas Dudley, Simon Bradstreet and Thomas Wiggin how easy it was for them to join on.

CHAPTER XVII

We will commence this line with Alfred the Great.

1. Alfred the Great was born in Wantage in 849, crowned in Winchester in 871; died October 28, 901. He married Ethelbith of Mercia, England.

He was strong in adversity, modest in his good fortune, patient, fertile in resources, brave, pious; he had so many virtues that he well merited the name Great.

He continued the fight against the Danes. In one year he fought eight battles with them. He gathered his followers around him in Sommerset and defeated the Danes and he granted them amnesty on condition that they become Christians and be baptized. Alfred, now seeing his kingdom at peace, made a journey to Rome, where he was crowned by Pope Adrien II. He encouraged the arts and sciences and founded Oxford university. He was a thorough business man. He was one of the world's greatest men. He died October 28, 901.

2. Princess Ethelfleda, "The Lady of Mercia," who married Ethelred, Duke of Mercia. She died in 920.

3. Lady Elwina, who married a West Saxon nobleman.

4. Algar, Earl of Mercia, who married .....

5. Lady Lucia, who married first Roger de Romera, Earl of Lincoln, and after his death she married second Ranulf de Meschines, Earl of Chester, who was the son of Ralph de Meschines, Earl of Chester and his wife, Lady Maud, daughter of Richard Goz, Viscount of Anverenche, Earl of Chester, and his wife, Lady Margaret, a half sister of Wiliam the Conqueror, King of England, and daughter of Robert the Devil, Duke of Normandy.

6. Randle de Meschines, second Earl of Chester, who died in 1155, and his wife, Lady Maud, daughter of Robert Mellent, the consul, created 1109 Earl of Gloucester, died 1147, a son of Henry I, King of England. Here we connect with the Irish line from Adam, giving an outline down through the Irish and Scottish line.

These numbers are generations from Adam.

1. Adam and Eve, 4004 B. C.
2. Seth, 3874 B. C.
9. Methuselah, 3317 B. C.
10. Noah, 2948 B. C.
11. Japhet.
12. Magog.
14. Feinius Forsaidh. He established school of languages after Babel 2000 B. C.
15. Nial (went to Egypt, where he established a school).
36. Milesius of Spain.
37. Heremon (He conquered Ireland, 1699 B. C.
59. Ugaine Mor 60th Irish King, 633 B. C.
75. Crimhtham Niadknais (100th Irish King. Christ born during his time).
80. Conn of 100 battles. 110th Irish King, A. D. 123.
89. Muredach, 503. 131st King of Ireland.
90. Fergus Mor Mac Earca (King of Scotland).
100. Alpin.
101. Kinith Mac Alpin, 850.
104. Malcom 1st of Scotland 942.
109. Malcom 3rd of Scotland.
110. Robert, Count of Meullent, Earl of Leicester, and his wife, Isabella, daughter of Hugh Mangus (Hugh the Great), Count of Vermandois, a son of Henry I of France.
111. Elizabeth de Bellomont and Henry I, King of England.
112. Robert, the consul, Count of Meullent (Mellent), who was created Earl of Gloncester in 1109, and his wife, Amicia, a sister of Avisa, the first wife of King John. She was a daughter of William, the Count of Meullent, second Earl of Gloucester. He died 1147.
113. Maud, who married Randle Meschines, second Earl of Chester

(see No. 6 from Alfred the Great, above). He died 1155.

114. Hugh de Mechines 3d, Earl of Chester, who died 1181.

115 Pagan de Meschines.

128. Richard Tuthill.

129. William Tuthill.

(Browning, in Americans of Royal Descent, does not give the above two numbers, 128 and 129, but says that William Tuttle, the New Haven settler, was a great grandson of Richard Tuthill and Joan Grafton of London. A writer in the Boston Transcript supplied these names. We have not been able to prove or disprove it, but as Wm. Tuttle was a great grandson of Richard Tuthill the line of descent is complete whether these two names supplied are correct or not.)

G. A. J.

130. William Tuthill of Saint Albans, England. Married Elizabeth ..... (took name of Tuttle). Sailed for America on the "Planters" in 1635. He was listed as "husbandman," age 26, and she age 23, and their son, John, was 3½. Settled first in Charleston, Mass., was given permit to build a windmill in 1635. Removed to New Haven and describes himself as a merchant. In 1638 he is described as Mr. His grounds is now a part of Yale college. On the same spot where William and Elizabeth Tuttle lived their great-grandson, Jonathan Edwards, studied and later taught. It is here where the class histories are recited.

It will be remembered that this is a reprint of October, 1926, as many have wanted the Kimball lines, and if you are a descendant of Jonathan Jewett (3), a grandson of Maximilian (4) this is your line and you can connect with Royal line and then back to Adam.

Or if you are a descendant of Jeremiah Jewett (3), a grandson of Joseph Jewett (1), who married Elizabeth Kimball (5), a granddaughter of Richard and Ursula Scott-Kimball, you can connect with Royal Lines and back to Adam.

If you have any trouble making the connection write me.

Now Read On—

133. Anne Wiggin (4), who married Joseph Jewett (4), was the daughter of Jonathan Wiggin (3) and his wife, Mary Emery (3). Jonathan Wiggin was the grandson of Gov. Thomas Wiggin (1), the first governor of New Hampshire, who was born in England. Came to America in 1630. He was a stern Puritan, a confidential friend of Gov. John Winthrop of Massachusetts Bay Colony. As early as June 25, 1630, he was in possession of some land in Maine which was protested against by John Oldham (1) (the emigrant ancestor of Mrs. Geo. A. Their daughter, Mary, who was born in Rowley, November 4, 1726, was baptized in Stratham, October 6, 1756. They removed to Hopkinton, N. H., and united with the church there November 6, 1774, by letter from the Church of Christ at Stratham. They both died in Hopkinton.

Benjamin and his brother, Joseph, were proprietors of the Masonia land grant at Meredith, 1748, and with their father, Jonathan, proprietors of Stratham, 1748.

Dorothy Rogers, daughter of Robert and Dorothy, February 25, 1708-4; baptized in Rowley church March 5, 1708-4. When her father's estate was settled June 15, 1730, Benjamin receipted to her brother, John Rogers, for her share. Her father, Robert Rogers, was a man of considerable prominence. He was the son of John and Dinah (Chiske) Rogers of Ipswich. John Rogers was son of Robert and Susanna ..... Rogers of Boston and Newbury. John was born in Newbury March 13, 1673-4. He was a saddler and innkeeper. He married Dinah Chiske of Ipswich, November 7, 1679. His father, Robert Rogers, died in Newbury, December 23, 1683, and his mother, Susanna, died March 29, 1667. Her will can be seen at Salem court house.

The first mention of Robert and his wife, Susanna, and daughter, Elizabeth, in Newbury was in 1650. Dorothy Smith Rogers was a daughter of Richard Smith, Jr., and Hannah (Cheney) Smith. She was born in Ipswich, 1682, and died in Rowley on August 17, 1718. Richard Smith, Jr., was son of Richard Smith, Sr., and his wife. Richard, Jr., was born in Ipswich, 1642, was a voter 1679. He married Hannah Cheney on March 16, 1659. She was a daughter of John and Martha Cheney and was born in Newbury, Mass., March 16, 1642.

It will be noticed that the descendants of Benj. Jewett and his wife, Dorothy Rogers, are doubly descended from John and Martha Cheney, as follows:

1. John and Martha Cheney.
2. Mary Cheney and Wm. Law.
3. Rebecca Law and Jos. Jewett.
4. Jonathan Jewett and Mary Wicom.
5. Benj. Jewett and Dorothy Rogers.

1. John and Martha Cheney.
2. Hannah Cheney and Rich. Smith, Jr.
3. Dorothy Smith and Robert Rogers.
4. Dorothy Rogers and Benj. Jewett.

I am still tracing the Rogers line and hope to connect it with Mayflower Rogers.

The children of Benjamin Jewett and his wife, Dorothy, were as follows:

Mary, born in Rowey on November 24, 1726.

Benjamin, born in Stratham, 1728.

John, born in Stratham, 1735.

Probably there were others.

134. John Jewett, son of Benjamin Jewett, and his wife, Dorothy Rogers was born in Stratham, N. H., in 1735 married August 10, 1758, his cousin, Hannah Jewett, daughter of Joseph Jewett, and his wife, Anne Wiggin. Hannah Jewett was No. 134 through the original Dudley line.

John Jewett received a lot of land from his father, Benjamin. Consideration in deed, "love and affection." He was a large land owner, his name appearing often on the early land records. He lived first in Stratham, N. H., then removed to Hopkinson, N. H. He built a home on Jewett road which is still standing. He and his father, Benjamin, signed, March 14, 1771, "Fidelity Test Oath" at Hopkinton. (See original on file at Concord, N. H. (Benjamin's signature shows signs of age.)

"THE FIDELITY TEST OATH

"We, the subscribers, do hereby solemnly engage and promise that we will, to the utmost of our power, at the Risk of our Lives and Fortunes, with Arms, oppose the Hostile Proceedings of the British Fleets and Armies Against the United States Colonies."

John did scout duty from Hopkinton in the War of the Revolution. See(New Hampshire State Papers, page 76, for list of soldiers from Hopkinton.)

The town of Concord, in Grafton county, afterwards changed to Lisbon, voted John Jewett some land if he would come there and locate. He did so. He again enlisted in Bath and served in the Revolutionary war. (See Revolutionary Rolls, Vol. 3, page 541, New Hampshire list of 67 soldiers from Bath. Also see History of Bath by Sutherland, page 100, list of those who went from Bath. Also see Grafton County Gazeteer by Childs, page 135.)

John and Hannah had the following children who would be the 135th generation from Adam:

Born in Stratham, N. H.—
Mehitable, May 28, 1759.
David, April 24, 1761.
Born in Hopkinton, N. H.—
Nathaniel, March 13, 1763.
Joseph, March 24, 1765.
Eunice, April 24, 1767.
Bette, June 30, 1771.
Sallie, April 10, 1774.
Born in Lisbon, N. H.—
Clerkinda, November 11, 1787.
Hannah, April 15, 1789.
Cynthia, December 26, 1790.
John, Jr., March 12, 1793.
Uriah Stone, January 28, 1795.
John Haynes, October 44, 1796.

As yet we have found no record of his death, but he was in Lisbon as late as April 26, 1804.

Editor's Note:

This concludes the direct Jewett Lines. However, Mr. George A. Jewett (who wrote this Book) has another section on Magna Carta Barons. He is descended from 15 of the 25 Barons (who he names) as are many Jewetts, and he traces the descent of some of these.

There are also the genealogies of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, both descended from a common ancestor making them 23rd first-cousins, 4 times removed. They both are descended from many of the same Magna Carta Barons as are the Jewetts.

We will print these in 1982, to honor the 250th anniversary of George Washington's birth.

Also, he traces the Welch descent of his wife, Annie Henry; through the Owens, Lewis, Evans and Griffiths. There are so many surnames of note in this genealogy that we will print it later if the members would like.

News Notes

Edna Jewett wants to say Thanks for all the beautiful letters and cards she received through the year.

From the letters, she has heard of three different names for the father of Edward Jewett, the parent of Maximilian and Joseph: Oliver; Thomas; William. No proof has been presented so she cannot determine which one to use. Rev. Ezekiel Rogers' books and papers were destroyed by fire, including the parish register containing information on the many families which came to the new world in 1638. However, the search goes on and some day we may find the answer.

Mrs. Vera Brown (Mrs. Blaine) writes that although she is 150 to 175 miles away from the volcano in Washington State, there is much ash, making it difficult to breathe.

We have had many comments on the publishment of George A. Jewett's "138 generations" — all most interesting and some have their lines intersecting the lines quoted by George A. Jewett.

Our new member, Mrs. Mary H. MacDonald, writes that she has two lines of Jewett ancestry.

Mrs. Schneider of So. Charlestown, W.V. is helping her cousin work on their family line of N.C. Kennedy. This Kennedy family was of the South, mainly South Carolina.

Miss Louise Bridges has been ill in a convalescent home, but is improving and will be living with her sister in Orlando, Florida.

Mrs. Jeanne Mobley, of Omaha, NE., has found that she has a double line of Jewetts and another of Platts; also, through a cousin has located more material on her Munson line.

In May, 1980, Miss Elizabeth Jewett of Middlebury,Vt. took a trip to Ottawa "at Tulip time", the canal ride she found most enjoyable.

The Society Of Distinguished American High School Students in their Year-book of 1980 included the name Deborah Louise Bruce, of Clinton, Ct. She is the daughter of Natalie (Jewett) and Glenn D. Bruce, and the granddaughter of Edna and the late Everett Jewett.

Our new member, Mrs. Joseph (Suzanne) M. Harrer writes she has recently moved to Gallup, N.M., to live with her youngest daughter, Elizabeth, and her husband, Ken Tuttle. They have a little boy, Keith. Betty teaches commercial subjects in Window Rock, Arizona, and Ken teaches music at Gallup High School.

She is keeping busy taking some courses at the Gallup Branch of the Uni. of New Mexico.

In Mrs. Mobley's line (#1965) it is discovered that the mother of Susanne Munson was Abigail Perkins. Mrs. Mobley had been searching for some time for this fact.

Mrs. Mary Anne Shields, our new member, writes that her daughter, Mary-Jo Shields Lefebore, has lately retired as a star of Holiday on Ice, one of the famous Ice Shows. Her father-in-law was Paul Andre, well known skating star.

Mrs. Richard Clark, now of DeBary, Florida, sent us a card showing Mt. Jewett in northwest Pennsylvania. Also, a friend of Your Editor gave us some brochures, but no one has told us the history.

Mrs. C. (Jewett) McGehee of Ottawa, Kansas, sent a clipping of a tin foot tub made by John Jewett of Buffalo, N.Y. about 1850. Mrs. McGehee, who is the daughter of Clyde Jewett, #3660, tells about her daughter, Debbie. Debbie graduated from Kansas State U. in Manhattan, Kansas, and is now attending Graduate School. Her degree was in elementary Education with a focus on Learning Disabilities.

John F. Jenkins of Greenfield, N.H. writes: "My mother was Satia Jewett Hyde, and her father, Edward Augustus Hyde, married into the Jewett family. Of some interest to my good wife and me is that one Mary Jewett about 200 years ago married one Henry Walbridge — my wife being Katrina Wallbridge Clark, her mother a Walbridge, all of which makes us ninth cousins; and to top that, I have found that I am my father's sixth cousin, no end to all this.

When I found that we all came from Adam and Eve, that about did it, all of which we knew all the time."

Theodore V. Hermann of Englewood, N.J., says that his branch of the Jewett Family always translated the slogan, "Tourjours Le Meme," as meaning "Ever Constant," rather than "Always the Same." Interesting.

We were sorry not to see Mrs. Burlingame at the Directors' Meeting. She had fallen and suffered a crushed disc in her vertebra. Best wishes to you, Evelyn.

Jim Gilliland, son of Gil and Phebe (Morrill) Gilliland has retired from the California Highway Patrol and has been attending the San Diego School of Evangelism. A brother, Kelley, is with the Sheriff's Department. Phebe Morrill Gilliland is the daughter of Ralph L. and Hope (Jewett) Morrill, #9575 in the genealogy.

SHOWING THE TEACHER. Dorothy Brigham, her quilting efforts. Donna Clapp gets some good advice.

Dorothy Jewett Brigham, Edna and the late Everett Jewett's daughter, has a very attractive Silver Thimble Quilt Shop in Ipswich, and Dorotny was featured in a quilt article in Diversions, a North Shore newspaper, recently, and in The Ipswich Chronicle. She teaches and enters shows and is quite a person.

The Calhouns of Brockwell, Ark., sent a brochure on their son Bert's new business called PIP Postal Instant Press, in Ft. Smith Ark. A good wish for success, Bert.

Roger Jewett, our Director for Life, is attempting an index of Jewett Family Lines as reported in the Jewett publications. He finds he does not have Vol. I, Copy 1, October, November, December, 1952; or Vol. III, Copy 2, Spring of 1955. Perhaps one or more of our members will have these copies to loan, then he can provide a complete index. His address is R.D. #1, Pownal, Vt. 05261.

Mrs. Marion R. Emmons, Columbia, Ct., retired April 1, 1980, as Supervisor of the Data Processing Dept. at the Mansfield Training School in Conn. Austin and Marion are enjoying their retirement in Columbia, Ct.

Mrs. Margaret Jewett of Croswell, Mich. wishes to state that on page 21 of the 1980 yearbook, it should read that Elwin S. and Irwin Hull Jewett were born in Manchester, Michigan.

In the Yukon Territory of Canada, at Dawson City, is a Lady Constable name of Audrey Jewett. A female Jewett police officer and a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, no less! Constable Jewett sought the assignment after three years of undercover and police work in Britain.

Her father and brother are in the Mounties.

Of 13,400 Regulars, only 292 are women. Audrey handles the same assignments as the men and has only drawn her gun one time. Great show!

We received a picture of Dog Kennels being built by Jewett Construction Co. in Raymond, N.H. Owner of the company is Edward Jewett, fourth son and sixth child of Edna and the late Everett Jewett.

Cliff and Lucyle Jewett spent March in Phoenix, Ariz., and had a great time. They plan to attend the Triennial Conference of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in Plymouth, Mass. in the Fall, then attend the Jewett Family annual meeting of the Board of Directors at Old Sturbridge Village.

GOIN' STRONG — Albert Hodgman, second from right, has celebrated his 100th birthday. With him, from left, are his son, Richard A. Hodgman, grandson Philip W. Hodgman, both of Andover, and daughter, Mrs. Miriam I. Owen of West Boylston.

Albert R. Hodgman was 100 years of age on Mar. 9, 1981, and has been voting for 60 years! He celebrated with the Masons of Good Samaritan Lodge in Reading, Mass., and they dedicated the foyer to him and to the memory of his wife Imogene (Hale Jewett) and son Russell. He received cards from presidents, governors, legislators, Aleppo Temple Shrine, and stage personalities.

The Town of Stoneham, Mass., presented him with a citation; Governor King gave him a good citizens award. He had a big cake.

Albert — may you live another 100!

On July 4, 1980 the "Liberty Pole" at Clark's Corner, Hampton, Conn., on Rte. 6, was rededicated in a special public program arranged by Mrs. Paul Revere Gordon (nee Faun Elizabeth Jewett), Mrs. Gordon carrying on the tradition of her late grandfather, Allen Jewett, and her late father, Elmer Clafin Jewett, of Hampton.

The pole, weathervane, and sign board date from 1849 when Jonathan Clark, who operated an inn, used them to advertise his strong "Free Soil" commitment. Liberty Poles which were common many years ago across the U.S., are very rare today.

Neal Lason Moon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Moon, Hampton, Ct., is engaged to Miss Mary Ann Zaviski, Rocky Hill, Ct. Neal is a music teacher.

Robert Ellsworth, son of Mrs. Thera (Howe) Ellsworth, retired this year as Principal of the Hampton, Ct., Consolidated School. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ellsworth live in Abington, Conn.

Ellen Marcia Jewett

Ellen Jewett of Laconia, N.H., graduated from Annapolis on May 27, 1981, in the 2ond class to admit women. A great accomplishment.

She is the daughter of the late Judge Stephen S. Jewett and Mrs. Mary Jewett, Orton. Her father was a Navy pilot in World War II.

Mary's Company — the 25th — was chosen the Color Company, which is the highest award.

Now an Ensign in the U.S. Navy, she will be stationed in Greece at a Navy communications station.

She attained the following Striper Leadership Positions: First and Second Class Drum and Bugle Corps Squad Leader; First and Second Class Company Squad Leader; First Class Company Squad Leader; and First Class Company Operations Leader.

Leslie Herrmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore V. Herrmann of Englewood, New Jersey, has completed building her six-foot Newtonian Reflector Telescope which stands as tall as she does. She is President of the Astronomy Club at School. Brother Teddy is in his third year at Georgetown University and was elected Captain of the Sailing Team. Suzanne is Senator of her Sophomore Class at Mount Holyoke College.

Carroll A. Jewett of Mazon, Ill., sends us this little verse;

HAPPINESS: In our frantic search for happiness
We often find
That it is not at distant Rainbow's end,
But rather, it is a state of mind,
Flourishing best when shared with a friend.

William Nourse Jewett (#7232) sent us a letter that was written to his mother, Mrs. G.A. Jewett, by George A. Jewett, about a letter which had the same name as his being sent to him in 1915. The confusion of identical intitials introduced William's parents to The Jewett Family of America, Inc.

Mrs. Marion R. Emmons, 55 Lake Road, Columbia, Ct., 06237 would like to buy a copy of the Jewett Family Genealogy Volumes, called "History and Genealogy of the Jewetts of America," by Frederic Clarke Jewett.

Please contact her if you would like to sell.

Numbers seem to rule our lives; a letter was sent from Rowley to Mrs. Margaret Head of Montebello, California, the zip code was wrong and the letter went to Utah and Colorado to several different towns, before someone read the address!

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Arnett Sr. (Wilma Clark) celebrated their 60th Wedding Anniversary August 21st 1980. One celebration was held in Forestville, Ca., "Evening in the Park", 125 attending, by the Prime Timers Travel Club. The second celebration was on the 24th, held at their daughter's home in Sunnyvale, Ca. Mrs. Arnett sent us this notice and said they were very grateful to have such loving families, also for the 60 years.

A picture of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Jewett taken on their golden wedding day.

A Grandfather's Comment on Death

(This letter was written Feb. 10, 1973, by Lawrence Dewey Graves, a minister, whose obituary appeared in the 1980 Year Book.)

Dear Grandchild,

Your question last evening, put to us at the table, needs to be answered. You wanted to know about death. You asked if we die is that the end? Is all that remains of a dead person just a memory? Or is there more? If so what kind of more is there?

When we are thinking about this very important matter, (Death) we have to admit that there are more things we can't explain than there are that we can. Even the things we think we can explain, like plant growth and the nature of light, aren't explained when we explain them. In spite of this shortcoming we seem to manage to go on with the business of life just as well.

Religion is more like measuring reality with everything you've got than saying, "I understand it because I can make sense of it with my mind." Nobody is big enough to handle the whole of reality, even if he be a genius.

Religion has the feeling that all measurements are provisional. I mean by that, we accept them because they are convenient for us . . . For instance. A long time here may not necessarily be a long time in other frames of reference, such as beyond death. What's far away now may be then an arm's length away. What we call dead silence may really be throbbing with music. What appears empty may be jammed with free living beings. When someone pushes the button of Death, it may be as startling a revelation as when we turn on the lights to find our house filled with guests come to celebrate our birthday.

So we died. (For instance). We do not cease to exist. We are immediately introduced to a new form of existence . . . We sit down with, (our friends) but they are not aware that we are there because they are blind to the wave length which signals our presence.

Yes, I believe that life goes on after Death. I cannot prove it. I simply know in the depth of my being that God did not exhaust his options in the limited conditions of my present life.

Love,
Your Grandfather, LDG

Genealogies

ADDITIONS TO "THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN JEWETT THROUGH HIS GRANDSON, DAVID JEWETT," as printed in the 1962 Yearbook.

John Jewett was the son of Benjamin and Dorothy (Rogers) Jewett, #180 in the Genealogy, although John's birth is not recorded there.

The numbers refer to the 1962 yearbook. This is the Quebec Family.

Jewett, Hayes, Windom

The author of the story is our new member, Mrs. Stanley L. Ehlke of Gervais, Oregon. She is the great-granddaughter of the Priscilla Hayes who married Drury Douglas Windom. Priscilla was the subject of the article printed in our year-book of 1968, by Mrs. Blaine Brown.

A wagon-train of several families, captained by Nelson Davis, left Libertyville, Jefferson Co., Iowa the 7th of April 1853, headed for Oregon; and arrived in Portland, Oregon 21st Sept. 1853.

The Davis Train was composed of: The Nelson Davis family, his married sons and married daughters, and their families.

John Boyd and wife, their married sons and daughters and their families.

Seth Hayes and wife, Lydia (Jewett) Hayes, their married sons and daughters and families, and two unmarried daughters, Sybil A. Hayes, and Priscilla Ann Hayes.

Hannah Hayes Bond, wife of William Bond, died on the wagon train, 15 Sept., 1853. She was buried near the trail at the east slopes of Mt. Hood.

Jesse Windom, his wife and family which included two unmarried sons; Benjamin Carroll Windom and Drury Douglas Windom. (They had joined the train at Glenwood, Mills Co., Iowa).

Benjamin Carroll Windom, born 1832 in Illinois, died 5 July, 1907 in Linn Co., Oregon. Married by the Rev. H.K. Hines on 7 Oct., 1853, at Portland, Oregon, to Sybil A. Hayes, born 1 Mar., 1831 at Burton, Geauga Co., Ohio. They had four children.

Drury Douglas Windom, born 1834 in Kentucky; died 1909. Married, 18 May, 1854, in Marion Co., Oregon to Priscilla Ann Hayes, born 4 Feb., 1837, LaGrange Co., Indiana; died 2 Mar., 1872, Halsey, Linn Co., Oregon. They had six children.

Jesse Windom was a wagon maker. Benjamin and a son, Alonzo established and operated a wagon making business from about 1865 to about 1885 at Lebanon, Oregon.

Drury Douglas Windom was a farmer. I have very little information on him. His son, my grandfather, Alanson Jewett Windom, was born 14 Feb., 1855, in Linn Co., Oregon. He died 29 June, 1900. He married 13 Feb., 1892, Elsie Dollar. He and Elsie had three children. They farmed 320 acres in Crook Co., Oregon raising wheat. In 1934 the land was sold to the Marginal Land Co.
